A Stone Age Village
What Right Have Mothers 'Weep and Howl'—No More
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Rashly, the question was asked here: "Why do you read this; how would you advise improving it?"

To answers numbering thousands it is impossible to reply individually. Those that write in a friendly way, please accept this writer's gratitude; those that criticise severely are thanked even more earnestly.

A village of the stone age is found on Mount Larsus, near Rome, the Eternal City. Before the wolf nursed Romulus and Remus—which she never did—before the earth opened in the forum and the hero jumped in—which never happened—before the vestal virgins began to murder and burn, ten thousand years before there was any Rome, Athens or Babylon, Sidon, Tyre or Jerusalem, strange people, perhaps your ancestors, were sharpening their stone hatchets on top of Mount Larsus, looking out for low-browed, stooping enemies with big teeth, climbing up from the marshy banks of the Tiber. It's an interesting world, only a baby yet. "We," as Bacon said, "are the ancients," and we are in our swaddling clothes.

Dr. Marie C. Stopes comes all the way from England to persuade us that parenthood, control of birth by mothers, should be permitted by law.

At first glance it does seem strange that government should warn the farmer against allowing calves, mules or pigs to be born while the mother is too young, and makes it a criminal offence to tell human beings how they may also regulate birth.

It's rather a big subject for a paragraph. Caruso was the nineteenth child. Birth control probably would have kept him in the great unknown. So of Carlyle, Napoleon, many others. Holland and other countries legalise birth control, in fact, the Dutch government teaches it. It doesn't seem to make much difference there except that the number of children physically unfit is smaller.

Many clergymen on Sunday last devoted sermons to "The moral issues of the threatened railroad strike." One reverend gentleman called it "a communal crime." It isn't exactly that, but rather the effort of workmen to keep high wages brought by war—just as eminently respectable profiteers are struggling to hold high prices brought by war.

St. James was inclined to take the other side. See James, Chapter V, verses 1 and 4:

"Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you.

"Behold, the hire of the labourers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth; and the cries of them which have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth."

Wages have increased since that was written. The average pay of railroad workers today is $4.54. Four years ago it was $2.87. But you are mistaken if you think the workmen are better off. Rent and the cost of living take care of that $1.67 increase easily.

From each of four American burying grounds in France one body of an American soldier was taken. Yesterday Sergeant Edward S. Younger, distinguished for his service in fighting, chose one of the four to be buried with great honor, typifying respect for the unknown dead.

It was all done solemnly and reverently, as it should be. One American soldier, mutilated beyond recognition, finds an honorable last resting place.

How welcome now would be a little REALITY, a little effort to select from living American soldiers, survivors of the war, those that need help and are entitled to the country's gratitude.

Mr. Munsey's New York Sun says the Federation of Labor opposes a railroad strike. It quotes no authority worth while, but the statement is probably true. The business of the Federation is to HELP MEN WIN, not push or watch them slide into defeat. This strike would mean defeat, and would mean undoubtedly the breaking up of many unions. THE OPEN SHOP in departments of railroad work now well organized. That would be bad for the railroads.

State Issues Dynamite Warning

MAGAZINES SHOULD BE GUARDED

Colonel Foote Counsels Authorities to Protect Explosives Because of "Unsettled Times"

State Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foote today warned city and town authorities throughout Massachusetts to throw adequate guards about dynamite magazines and other storehouses of high explosives.

Coincident with this, State Superintendent of Public Buildings Fred H. Kimball ordered his men to keep particularly vigilant watch about the State House.

Commissioner Foote explained that his move was made "because of the unsettled conditions of the times and the threat of a railroad strike."

The order, however, came hard on the heels of several threats of high explosives, the last committed Saturday, when eighteen sticks of dynamite were taken from W. J. Barry's Roslindale quarries.

Explaining that he meant no reflection on railway workers by his reference to a railway strike, Foote said:

"I have absolutely no fear of the class of men who may decide to go on strike. The engineers and conductors, for example, are among our best citizens. But there are always persons in a community who might decide to take advantage of the turmoil of a strike to create disorder."

Foote's order was to Chiefs Stone, and addressed to fire chiefs. The first part asked an inventory of the explosives in various communities; the second asked that such explosives be placed under guard. These guards may be firemen, police or special watchmen.

Commissioner of State Buildings Kimball has not increased his force of guards but has directed them to work extra hours for the present so that the State House and other State edifices shall not be inadequately guarded at any time.

Commissioner Foote was asked today concerning the six members of the State constabulary who slept in the State House last night. He said their presence there was a coincidence, and only part of their training. They have been at Framingham and part of their duties are to guard state public buildings.

Exposes Plot to Dynamite Railways

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 25—Lamar Poole, chief of Atlanta detectives, declared today he had discovered evidence of a plot to dynamite two Southern railways.

Poole gave out this information following discovery that 300 sticks of dynamite had been stolen from a rock quarry. Twenty of the sticks were found today, on which were drawings of locomotives, tunnels and other objects connected with railways.

Chief Poole declared the discovery indicated that the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railway and the Southern Railway were objectives of dynamiters.

Over the rude drawing of one engine on the paper wrapping were letters "A. B." and "A" and above another was the word "Southern," Poole said.

No trace has been found of the additional dynamite and detectives were at once assigned to the task of finding it. The dynamite in the sewer was found by playing children.

Demands Expulsion of Blanton, Texas Congressman

Washington, Oct. 25.—Republican Leader Mondell shortly after House convened today introduced a resolution calling for the expulsion of Representative Blanton, Democrat, of Texas.

The resolution charged that Blanton had inserted matter in the Congressional Record which was unfit for publication and in violation of the postal laws.

Agreement was reached to take up Mondell's resolution on the convening of the House Thursday, upon request of Democratic Leader Garrett. Mondell stated that he had notified Blanton to be present in the House today, but that Blanton was absent and that "such a grave matter" could not be taken up in the absence of the member against whom action is contemplated.

RAIL LABOR BOARD IS DEFIED BY BROTHERHOOD CHIEFS

Cleveland, O., Oct. 25 (by the Associated Press).—W. S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, today confirmed reports that he has advised the general chairmen of the engineers that they need not respond to the citation of the Railroad Labor Board to appear before the board in Chicago tomorrow, by making public telegrams exchanged between Chairman R. M. Barton of the board and the "Big Five" executives.

Chairman Barton last night wired President Stone that the board's order included the general chairmen. The executive reply, sent today by the five executives, advises Chairman Barton that it is "evident you have statements of the several executives confused," and explains that the general chairmen of the engineers have no authority to act on matters pertaining to settlement of the proposed strike, this authority being invested in the grand officers and the executive committees only.

Chairman Barton's message to Mr Stone follows:

"We are receiving word from chairmen that they have been advised by you they need not attend Wednesday. This is not meaning of board's order in view of your statement to board as to importance of chairmen in present situation. The board desires their presence."

The reply to Chairman Barton's message follows:

"Very evident you have statements of the several executives confused. Mr. Lee stated it would require action of chairmen and committee on individual roads. Sheppard, Carter, Chabon and Stone stated the executive committees and grand officers

HEIRESS BRIDE IS MISSING

Young Wife Flees After One Week With Her 60-Year-Old Husband

Attleboro, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Laura R. Milot Setton pretty thirty-one-year-old Woonsocket heiress, has fled under mysterious circumstances from Ezra N. Setton, her sixty-year-old bridegroom, whom she married one week ago, four days after her father's death.

First information concerning the rift in the matrimonial tete of the Settons had it that she was simply "living apart."

Inquiry today, however, developed the fact that her whereabouts are unknown to the members of her own family.

Mrs. Setton was the favorite daughter of the late Arther C. Milot of South Main street, Woonsocket, who was secretary-treasurer of the Paragon Worsted Mill of that city and interested in other mill property. He died Oct. 13. She married Setton, nearly twice her age, Oct. 11.

They were married in Attleboro after securing the waiving of the five-day law, explaining that they were anxious to get to New York.

Mrs. Setton's relatives were opposed to the match and today made no secret of their joy at her leaving her husband.

"We feel that if Laura had been herself she would never have married Mr. Setton," said a sister.

"Her nerves were worn to a ragged edge by attending father in his last illness. It was then that Setton got her to consent to marry him. We consider them poorly mated."

Notwithstanding which her relatives maintained they had no idea where she was.

Mrs. Setton inherited a small fortune guaranteeing her an income of several thousand dollars a year for life.

New York, Oct. 25.—Mother love will come to the fore in the next move in the Stillman divorce case, when Mrs. Anna Urquhart Stillman, wife of the wealthy New York banker, will make a determined effort to obtain the guardianship of her two sons, James "Rod" Stillman and Alexander Stillman.

The hearing will be held before Surrogate John F. Cohalan, and it is understood will be bitterly fought. But those in the know say Mrs. Stillman will fight to the end to gain the legal guardianship of her sons. Both sons are now living with Mrs. Stillman at No. 910 Fifth avenue.

ARRESTS IN $1,000,000 LOTTERY

Promoters Accused of Doing Big Business Are Arrested at Springfield

Springfield, Oct. 25.—Agents of the United States Department of Justice today arrested four men here in what the officers describe as a "$1,000,000 a month lottery."

The prisoners gave their names as Frederick B. Finn, Northampton, George J. Babbineau, Holyoke, Francois A. Hambleton, Palmer, and Euclide Beaudry, Chicopee. All were held for hearing before United States Commissioner John L. Rice, in $1,000 cash.

According to the statement of the arresting secret service men the prisoners are agents of the so-called Canadian National Lottery, which is alleged to advertise a drawing of $500,000 prizes twice a month.

Thousands of dollars a week have been pouring into the headquarters of the company in this city from all over Massachusetts and other New England States, according to the statements of the agents.

The drawings, it is alleged by the United States officials here, have been "fixed" throughout and the purchasers of tickets have not even had a chance for their money.

Tickets sell, it is asserted, for $1 each, and several hundred daily have been sold in Springfield alone, say the secret service agents making the arrest.

The government has been on the trail of the lottery ticket vendors for several weeks, but only recently obtained the evidence necessary to making arrests.

The four men were taken into custody under Section 237, United States Penal Code which makes it a crime to receive lottery tickets from a commoncarrier. It is alleged that the prisoners received 500 tickets for the months lottery drawing from the American Railroad Express in violation of this section.

No date has been set for the hearing before Commissioner Rise.

The takings of the lottery agents is alleged to have run high into the thousands and may even total hundreds of thousands before the investigation into the company's operations is concluded.

SHOUTS THREAT AT PROBATION OFFICER

Roxbury Court was stirred today when a spectator jumped to his feet and shouted, "Someone ought to shoot Joe Keene." Keene is the probation officer. The man who shouted was found to be William J. Conway who was sent to the State Farm two years ago for drunkenness, and he is said to have blamed Keene for his committal. He was removed.

Senate Votes to Keep Old Income Rates

By Associated Press.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Normal tax rates of 4 per cent. on the first $4,000 of income and 8 per cent. on all over that amount were approved today by the Senate without a record vote. These are the rates now in force.

The committee amendment proposing the rates, which the Democrats sought to amend yesterday without success, was approved within a minute after the Senate met. There was no discussion and the amendments which Senator Trammell, Democrat, Florida, promised yesterday would be offered, failed to materialize.

9-INCH KNIFE IN NEW CLEW IN TORSO CASE

By Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 25.—A nightgown stained reddish brown, a nine-inch butcher's knife and a woman's battered plush hat—these were the latest clews presented today to the police engaged in solving the mystery of the legless body of an unidentified woman in a pool in Long Island City last Saturday.

The police today requested that disappearance of all girls with blonde hair be reported to them, in order to establish the identity of the murder victim by elimination.

A "second man" today entered the mystery surrounding the murder. Detectives working on the case advanced the theory that two took part in the dismemberment of the body, when the officers discovered that two shirts found wrapped about the mutilated torso were of different size and bore different laundry marks.

This theory was strengthened when a package containing a woman's blue serge suit, now believed to have been worn by the victim, was turned over to them. The discoverer of the package, a young woman, said she had seen two men throw it from an automobile near her home Saturday afternoon. The clothing was of a size that would have fitted the slain woman, and efforts are being made to trace it.

BIG SUPPLY AWAITING DOCTORS' ORDERS

Druggists Will Sell Case Lots as Often as Hub Physicians Direct

Government regulations lifting the lid on beer and assuring a plentiful supply to all through druggists were being rushed by officials at Washington today.

With a plentiful supply of beer already in Boston, druggists, under the new regulations, are authorized to sell to anyone, with a doctor's prescription, and doctors are authorized to give prescriptions as often as deemed necessary.

Buyers of beer may buy in case lots of twenty-four bottles each and druggists, who already have permits to sell alcoholic liquors are permitted to operate under them.

There is a plentiful supply of beer in the city and environs as in the manufacture of near beer it is necessary to make beer of true alcoholic content and then eliminate the alcoholic excess through boiling.

MAY CHECK HOME BREW.

State prohibition officers expected the new regulations at any time and were prepared to let down at once on the war on beer selling. The new regulations, also, were expected to put a damper on home brewing through the placing of brewery brewed beer within the reach of anyone through a prescription.

Druggists are authorized under the regulations to order their beer from any established brewery that has been operating since the prohibition law making non-alcoholic brews.

Breweries today were setting their machinery in shape to supply the rush for beer that is anticipated with the promulgation of the new regulations.

Local prohibition officials said today they have received no official information from Washington regarding a change in the regulations affecting beer, and until they do, the thirsty nonbeam must remain that way.

SPIRIT TO FIGHT.

In the mean time the leaders of the Anti-Saloon League are gathering their forces to attack the issuance of the regulation permitting the manufacture of "medicinal beer," and Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the league, announced today that every brewer applying for a permit would be prosecuted.

"The issuance of this regulation, in the eleventh hour before final action on the beer bill," declared Wheeler, "is less defensible than at any other time. A law-abiding brewer will hesitate to go into the business for the short time he will be permitted to do so.

"Brewers can sell their medicinal beer in a few states only. It will be used largely to supply bootleggers. Every brewer who has violated the law within a year is disqualified, and we shall fight every application on the ground that practically all of them have been guilty of such violation."

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon announced that he has signed an order providing for the sale of beer as a medicine by druggists. He added that regulations for the distribution of beer are now being sent to all prohibition enforcement directors throughout the country.

This action follows a long legal wrangle beginning when former Attorney-General Palmer issued an opinion last March to the effect that the sale of beer for medicinal purposes was strictly in accord with the law.

Regulations for the sale of beer under this opinion, however, were held up under protests from Congressmen, pending the passage of a bill specifically prohibiting such sale.

This bill has not yet passed and Secretary Mellon says he feels justified in issuing regulations in accordance with the former Attorney-General's ruling.

Doctors Here Say They Will Prescribe Beer

Boston doctors declared today that they would take advantage of the opportunity now offered to prescribe beer whenever necessary.

"Up to two ounces of alcohol a day is a food," said Dr. Seth F. Arnold, of No. 32 Huntington avenue. "I mean, however, good alcohol, and not the stuff with which the country is now flooded. Beer is an excellent food. As a medicine it is effective in cases of loss of appetite, for it serves as a tonic to the stomach."

"Beer is very stimulating and very refreshing after a hard day's work," said Dr. George F. Gavin of No. 243 Broadway, South Boston. I have always considered it very valuable in cases of anemia and debility, and I used to recommend it during convalescence. It has a tonic effect on the whole system and is, besides, a valuable food."

"Mothers who have difficulty in supplying enough milk for their children are frequently aided by beer," said Dr. William H. Bailey of No. 18 Bowdoin street. "Taken before going to bed at night it encourages sleep and often cures insomnia. It also is an appetizer. Before prohibition I used to recommend beer very widely to my patients instead of drugs."

Beer is of very limited value as a medicine in the opinion of Dr. George R. Southwick of No. 641 Marlboro street, Back Bay. "Except for some nursing mothers and for convalescent patients occasionally, I do not think it especially valuable as a medicine.

EMIL SCHUTTE SENTENCED TO DIE APRIL 10

By Associated Press.

Middletown, Conn., Oct. 25.—Emil Schutte, who was convicted of the murder of three members of the Ball family last week, was sentenced to be hanged on April 10, 1922, at the State prison, by Judge W. M. Maltbie, today.

In the jail at Haddam this morning Schutte attempted to kill himself by cutting his left wrist with a piece of tin. Surgical attention prevented loss of much blood and he was taken to court.

Judge Maltbie did not rule on the motion to set aside the verdict on the ground of insufficiency of evidence, saying that appreciating the point raised by counsel he would further consider the motion. The court said there was no need to delay imposition of sentence.

Schutte, when placed at the bar said:

"I have been robbed of my lands, my money, my bonds, worth $50,000, and my family. I swear by God Almighty that I did not burn the Ball family. I am absolutely innocent."

VANISHED BRIDE AND CHAUFFEUR SOUGHT

Police Hunt Mulatto Who Drove Car in Which Woburn Girl Left Wedding Party

In an effort to clear up the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Mary Helen Powell two hours after her marriage to Joseph Kochersa at her parents' home in Woburn, the police of that city today concentrated their efforts on finding the mulatto chauffeur who drove the car in which the girl was believed to have fled with another man.

Meantime the other mysterious features of the case remain unsolved. Neither Mary's family nor the newly-made husband can give the police any reason why the girl would have run away immediately after her marriage to the man she told her mother she loved devotedly.

Nor can they explain why the fleeing bride wore a fur coat valued at $300 and the property of Mary Enkeskei of Middlesex road, Woburn, and a bridesmaid at the wedding, as well as $300 belonging to the bridegroom.

"If she had not seemed to love Joe so much," cried the missing bride's sister, Ethel Powell, today, "there might be some explanation of this. But she appeared to be devoted to him. It was a real love match on both sides, apparently.

"And yet she runs off in this way. I can't understand it. Some malign influence must be at work upon her."

Ethel was Mary's confidant. It was to her that the missing girl told all her secrets. Ethel, therefore, is positive that Mary's flight was entirely unpremeditated and the result of something that happened immediately after the wedding.

"I wrote to another sister in New York to tell her if Mary turns up there to send her home, and that mamma and papa are more than willing to forgive her for her mistake."

Ethel would not say whether the newly-made husband also was willing to forgive.

Mrs. Frank Powell, the missing girl's mother, believes her daughter's disappearance is connected in some way with the girl's well known devotion to the movies.

"Mary was crazy about the movies," said Mrs. Powell today. "She took a course in a studio, but got too stout to get a place she wanted after she finished. That broke her up for a time."

One of the mother's worries has been Mary's liking for gay clothes. Dashing and auto rides with young American men. Mrs. Powell is a Pole by birth and still believes in the Polish idea of grooming up children.

"But Mary would not pay any attention to me," she cried today. "I did not mind her going with American men, but she was too much devoted to that sort of thing. I did not like it."

She only stated she would be guided by the police in that Mary had been seen riding away in a touring car driven by a mulatto in uniform and bearing a New Hampshire license number plate. In the rear seat with the girl was a man wearing a heavy overcoat.

Then came the discovery that the fur coat and Kochersa's $360, together with a man's derby hat and pocketbook, also had vanished.

The husband is in the depths of despair and, according to his friends, has repeatedly threatened to kill himself.

PETERS AGAIN MAKES APPEAL FOR LEVIATHAN

Mayor Peters today resumed the fight to bring the steamship Leviathan to Charlestown Navy Yard for repairs and thus provide work for the hundreds of men who get their livings there. He sent letters urging the claims of the local yard to Senators Walsh and Lodge, General Charles H. Lewis, director of the budget, and Congressmen Tague, Tinkham, Sullivan, Dallinger, Maloney and Underhill.

Again pointing out that Boston alone has a drydock big enough to accommodate the ocean palace; that the work can be done better here than elsewhere; that it need not cost more than at a privately-owned shipyard, the Mayor asks why his wishes and the wishes of thousands cannot be respected and work provided for some 2,500 Greater Boston workmen for a long period.

CRISIS IN IRISH PEACE OVER FOR PRESENT

Indicated by Sinn Fein Delegates' Failure to Return to Erin

London, Oct. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—The view was expressed at Sinn Fein headquarters this forenoon, that the crisis in the Irish conference was over for the present.

The Dail Eireann representatives, who sailed last night that if the negotiations were broken off today they would return to Ireland tonight, were this morning making no preparations to leave.

Catholic members of the delegation and of its staff attended mass this morning at Southwark Cathedral for the late Mayor MacSwiney of Cork.

Britain awaited with anxiety the resumption of the conference between representatives of the Dail Eireann and the British Cabinet today.

The fact that the conference would meet was, in the view of most of today's papers, the only thread upon which hope might be placed.

Editorial comment on the situation was virtually lacking this morning, the situation being regarded so critical that some London publications employed only generalities in their discussion of the prospects of an Irish settlement.

There was a rumor current here this morning that King George, whose keen interest in a settlement is unquestioned, might, if necessary, use any influence he possessed within the limits of the British constitution to harmonize the conflicting viewpoints in the conference.

There was no outward sign that such intervention would take place, and it was obvious the King's influence would have to be exerted with the greatest caution, if at all.

It was asserted by some newspapers that Lloyd George had put the direct question to the Irish delegates yesterday, whether they would recognize allegiance to the King as part of the Irish policy, the word "King" standing in this case as the synonym of British supremacy with all it entailed. What answer, if any, was given was not intimated.

CREDITORS SUE HARE'S MOTORS OF NEW ENGLAND

Salary claims of $7,833 by Roger J. Gilmore make up most of the $8,000.80 claimed by three creditors who today petitioned the Hare's Motors of New England, Inc. into bankruptcy in the federal court. They alleged preferential treatment of other creditors to the extent of $34,252.52. Frank Hochter, operating as the Hollander Hardware company, was also petitioned into bankruptcy by three creditors alleging $547.41 due for goods.

HELD FOR WEARING UNIFORM UNLAWFULLY

Louis S. Nelson of Church street, Woburn, appeared before Commissioner Hayes today charged with unlawfully wearing the uniform of a United States naval officer. He was held on $500 for the federal grand jury. It was also charged that he defrauded a Lucie Bay hotel out of three days' room rent.

HIGHER PAY FOR STRIKE DUTY ON RAILROADS

Men Charge Wage Offered in Boston Exceeds That for Skilled Employes

Boston railway workers today charged that local railroads are offering more money to workmen to do strike duty than they are paying to skilled employes.

In spite of which, say the union men, the roads want to reduce wages further still.

One man declared that he went to the South Station today and was offered a job as fireman at 70 cents an hour, or $5.60 for an ordinary work day, although the highest wage paid to passenger firemen under the existing schedule is $4.64. Freight firemen get as high as $5.82, but few of them get the maximum.

He was also offered work as a trainman, he said, at $5 a day, although men who have worked for years for the road are getting from $4.40 to $4.48 a day.

This man, who is not a union head, maintained that the railroads and their friends were carrying on a propaganda to prejudice the public and make people feel railway workers were getting fabulous pay.

He produced the following figures, compiled by the unions, showing what railway workers are getting now for anything less than a 100-mile run.

PASSENGER SERVICE.

Engineers	$5.82 to $6.06
Firemen	$4.32 to $4.64

These wage schedules are put out by union leaders here, who point to the fact that some transportation employes get as low as 42.2 cents an hour and that the men who get comparatively high wages are men who have served long apprenticeships.

They also say that in considering wages it should be remembered many railway workers have to be away from home every other day or night, paying for board and room in two localities.

They further assert that at the Unemployment Conference in Washington it was recommended the eight-hour law be repealed, although they say it has been proven that it works for the safety of the public.

The figures quoted and the arguments made have been embodied in a statement put forth by the local general chairmen of the Brotherhoods of Railway Trainmen, Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Locomotive Engineers and Railway Conductors.

House of Lords Rules Gambling Debts Are Recoverable

By Associated Press

London, Oct. 25.—A far-reaching and, for England, sensational decision has been rendered by the House of Lords in a ruling that money paid by check in settlement of a gambling debt is recoverable by the loser.

The decision opens an avenue for possible litigation involving hundreds of thousands of pounds sterling, and if all losers insisted upon their rights under the law it would mean the ruin of scores of the bookmakers.

The ruling has caused a furore in sporting circles, and the bookmakers have called a special meeting to consider the situation.

"We are also advised you are calling in chairmen of all short line and electric roads, for what purpose we do not know, as these men are not involved in present controversy. They are asking for instructions what to do, and we are not replying. We understand the board will reimburse them for time lost, railroad fare and expenses."

The message to Chairman Barton was signed by all of the "Big Five" leaders—President Stone, W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; W. S. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen; L. E. Sheppard, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, and Thomas J. Cashen, president of the Switchmen's Union of North America.

Chamber Has Enrolled 1,000 for R. R. Service

Registration of volunteers to fill vacancies on the railroads if a strike comes was resumed at the Chamber of Commerce today.

More than thirty men were in line in the rain when the doors opened and in the first hour more than 100 were registered, bringing the total of the two days up to more than 1,000.

Of these approximately 10 per cent. are men with former railroad experience of one sort or another and capable of signing. Into John left by strikers without training. The others will require instruction before they can be used.

Rail Board Insists Union Chairmen Must Appear

Chicago, Oct. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Judge R. M. Barton, chairman of the United States Railroad Labor Board, today telegraphed the heads of the four brotherhoods and the Switchmens union reiterating previous announcements that all general chairmen are expected to attend the hearing starting here tomorrow.

shooting following his arrest near Komorn.

Former Empress Zita saw him preparing to shoot himself, and prevented him from carrying out his intention.

The former Emperor and Empress are now prisoners in the Esterhazy Castle at Tata Tovaros, and Thomas Beaumont Hobler, British High Commissioner in Hungary, is hurrying there, with the representatives of other nations, to insure the safety of the prisoners.

Orders sent to the rebellious troops supporting Charles by Admiral Horthy, the Hungarian Regent, spelled the doom of Charles' attempt to regain at least a part of his former empire.

Charles' plan to return to the Hungarian throne having failed, the Hungarian government will probably await action by the allied powers regarding his future place of residence.

Followers of the former Emperor are reported to have lost half their number in attempting to retreat from Siclos to Tata Tovaros. The railroad line had been cut and they were forced to abandon their trains.

The advisability of interning Charles in the Abbey if Tihany until the allies finally decide his fate was being discussed by the government today. The Abbey is located near Lake Balaton, about sixty miles southwest of Budapest.

SUES FOR $800 FOR TOWING SCHOONER

Suit for $800 by the Forsyth Towing & Transportation Line of New York, against the owners of the Schooner Santine, from New York to Fairhaven, was filed in Federal Court today. The papers state that the company towed the ship on September 12 to 28 and that payment for the service was refused. They ask the court to issue an order to condemn the schooner, in order that it might be sold to satisfy their claim for payment.

CHILD'S BRAIN IS HURT BY STUDIES HE DISLIKES, SAYS EDISON

FINDS PLAY THE BEST TEACHER

By ALLEN V. BENSON

Copyright, 1921, by International News Service.

Orange, N. J., Oct. 25.—"I trust you nor anybody else," said Thomas A. Edison to me today, "can write a set of evident fact so plainly that three per cent. of those who read it can understand it. On second thought, I think I would reduce the number who can understand to two per cent."

The interview took place in his laboratory here. When I entered the door and caught sight of him he was bending over the same desk, where I had seen him 15 years ago, his big white head bent down over papers he was studying. He looked up and smiled with the cordiality that everyone that knows Edison will recall.

At my first question he plunged into the interview with all of the remarkable vigor that he puts into his work. His father died at the age of 104 and then only because, as Mr. Edison says, the cells of his body wished to separate and reassemble in some other body.

NEVER WENT TO SCHOOL.

Edison, as he says in his sketch in "Who's Who," never went to school, his formal education consisting only of "some instructions from his mother.

"The important thing," he said, "is not to make young children study things they don't like. The moment school is not play it is an injury. I don't know quite the age at which a child's mind atrophies, but it is somewhere between the ages of seven and fourteen. Make a child study what it does not like and keep this up until it is fourteen years old and its brain is impaired forever.

"The kindergarten is the place to begin. Children like to learn if they are taught right. They have great curiosity, but they want to be interested. Our educational methods do not interest them. Change the methods and many more 'freaks' will be produced. I am a freak."

Mr. Edison stopped, as he often does during an interview, and remained silent almost a minute. Then he looked up and said:

"The possibilities for the development of the human brain are almost infinite. Think of that boy twelve years old, who can play twenty-five games of chess at once and beat the best experts in the world. He is a prodigy, of course, but the prodigy only shows us we are all mad and we can only release our potentialities.

Edison has been going to school lately. His instructors are those who apply to him for employment. By studying their answers to his famous questionnaire he is learning things about the human race. He is in his seventy-fifth year and knows a great deal about his fellow-man before he launched his questionnaire, but he says the things he has learned recently astonish him.

SAYS FEW UNDERSTAND.

Some of the things he learned saddened him.

"You write an article," continued Mr. Edison, "and write as plainly as you can and think people understand you. You are wrong. Only 2 per cent. can understand because only 2 per cent. have sufficient imagination. That is why it takes so long to get any kind of needed legislation in this country. It takes twenty-five or thirty years to put anything over.

"If the people of the United States had imagination they could understand a thing the first time they were told and be ready to act at once.

"If only two per cent. understand," Mr. Edison was asked, "what chance is there of self-government?"

"Not a chance on earth," he replied.

"We have no self-government. We have government by a little group of men, most of whom are lawyers. You know what Herbert Spencer said about governments. He said the average intelligence represented by governmental acts was lower than the intelligence of the least intelligent member of the government. That explains a lot of things about governments."

Senator Who Is Facing Perjury Charge at Arizona Capital

SENATOR RALPH H. CAMERON

SENATOR SAYS INDICTMENT IS WORK OF FOES

Cameron Sees Action by Jury in Arizona as Result of Political Enmity

Ralph H. Cameron, United States Senator from Arizona and defendant in a $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Edward T. McFarlin, Boston banker, has been indicted on a charge of perjury by the Federal Grand Jury in Phoenix, Ariz., his home city, according to information reaching Boston today.

No details of the allegation have been received, and even in Phoenix all that is known publicly is that there is a note of the charge on the minute book of the Federal Court there.

Senator Cameron, who is at Washington, is quoted as saying that the indictment was the outcome of the efforts of "certain political foes" who have been "seeking to obtain an indictment for alleged improper and excessive use of money" in his election campaign. He added he is prepared to disprove any such charges if brought against him formally.

Wakefield and Stoneham were shocked when they heard of the suit filed by McFarlin of Park avenue, Stoneham, charging that the Senator from Arizona was responsible for the breaking up of his home.

In a statement flatly denying charges brought by the banker, Cameron brought the counter-charge of "blackmail," and declared the suit was the outgrowth of political fights in Arizona.

He said he had first met Mrs. McFarlin prior to her marriage to the Bostonian, when she was a passenger on a transcontinental train, and that he had met her but twice since that time, and her husband only once.

McFarlin alleged that four years after he married Mrs. McFarlin, after a period of apparently happy married life, his wife, who had been Mrs. Mary Lillian Checkley Bowker, and who was divorced from a wealthy Californian, suddenly left Stoneham, taking with her her son by her first marriage. That was in 1917.

The banker also alleged that Cameron alienated Mrs. McFarlin's affections a year prior to the date she deserted her home. His suit said that Senator Cameron was a man of fifty-six, married and with two children, and enormously wealthy.

'WIFE' HAS HEART OF STONE, SAYS 'HUSBAND'

Boston Man Declares Woman in 4-Cornered Love Tangle Was Wedded to Another

"That woman has a heart of stone. She will stop at nothing to further her own interests. She fooled me and bled me of money, but I am through now. It was a sorry day when I met her and a sorrier one when I married her."

Thus does Howard S. Mitchell, Boston upholsterer, speak of Mary Lillian Checkley, whom he thought was his wife until it was revealed to him, but a short time since, that she was already wedded to E. Seymour Checkley, deacon and head usher in Dr. John Roach Straton's church in New York.

QUADRANGULAR LOVE AFFAIR.

Mrs. Checkley is now the central figure in a strange quadrangular love affair that has sent a flutter of excitement throughout Boston and New York church and medical circles.

The peculiar love tangle came to light when William H. Bowker and his brother, George Bowker, of New York, brothers of Alice Bowker, former Boston choir singer, give Deacon Checkley a severe beating, supposedly for his attitude towards their sister. The deacon immediately brought suit for $20,000 damages against them. He alleges that they beat him twice.

It is alleged that Checkley had proposed to the former choir singer and had become engaged to her under the impression that his former wife, Mary Lillian Checkley, had been killed in a trolley accident in Boston. The alleged beatings came when it was discovered that Mary Lillian was very much alive in Boston.

TAKES BOSTON HUSBAND.

Then came the sensational development that Mary Lillian had tired of living alone and had taken unto herself as a husband one Howard S. Mitchell, an upholsterer. This complicated matters.

When seen by a Boston American reporter Mitchell was highly incensed over the entire affair. He is now wondering whether or not he is single or married, and to make certain he is preparing to sue for divorce.

"Mrs. Mitchell" is said to be attractive, and is a bit of a linguist, speaking several languages fluently. Her Boston "husband" formerly lived in South Portland, Me., and it is said to have at one time been a member of the Legislature of the State of Maine.

FULLER URGES ALLEN TO GET CONVICTION

Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller, speaking before the annual banquet of the Lynn Young Men's Christian Association, declared conditions revealed by Attorney-General Allen's probe of former Governor Calvin Tuttle' office were brought about by "indifference and lack of public spirit on the part of selfish politicians" and expressed hope that Allen would not allow his hand to be withdrawn from against those who used the district attorney's office for their own benefit.

LEVENSON GOES ON TRIAL IN NOVEMBER

Hearing on Allen Charges Before Supreme Court About 14th of Month

Attorney Harry E. Levenson, whose disbarment is sought by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen for alleged unprofessional conduct, will go on trial before the Supreme Court on or shortly after November 14, it was decided today.

Attorney-General Allen appeared before Supreme Court Justice Braley today and asked that the date of Levenson's trial be fixed. Assistant Attorney-General Albert Hurwitz acted for Allen and Attorney James T. Cassidy for Levenson, who was not present.

Hurwitz told the court he had been furnished with a copy of the specifications asked by Levenson and would be ready to turn them over to him within a week.

Judge Braley asked Cassidy if he would be ready to go to trial Nov. 14. The attorney said he didn't think he would, as Frederick J. Daggett, senior counsel, was out of the city, and it would also be necessary to get the deposition of William J. Corcoran, who is now in New York State.

Judge Braley thereupon ordered the defence to file its answer by Nov. 14, and the State to file its replication by Oct. 31.

He tentatively set the date of trial as the morning of Nov. 14, but the actual date of trial will be set by Judge Pierce, who will preside that morning. It is believed, however, that trial will not be long delayed.

WOMEN FIGHT FOR SEATS AT POISON TRIAL

Maine Wife Says Candy Produced by Husband Made Her Ill

Ellsworth, Me., Oct. 25.—Scores of women attempted to force their way into Judge Cornish's session of the Supreme Judicial Court here when the trial of Isaac L. Stover, charged with attempting to murder his wife Albertina, with poisoned candy, reopened today.

Under the ruling of the court only those who could be seated were allowed to enter the room and the others were compelled to leave. The interest in the trial, which is expected to continue for two days more, is intense.

Mrs. Stover, who was the first witness called by the prosecution, testified to having eaten candy which her husband bought for her on the motion picture show and to have been taken ill immediately afterward. The State charges that Stover treated the confection with strychnine.

Stover, a tall, thin man, with drooping brown mustache, took the same seat he occupied yesterday and resumed his occupation of making notes on the testimony, and occasionally bending forward and whispering to his attorney, D. E. Hurley.

Only when the name of the girl he is alleged to have been infatuated with, Sadie Gray, a pretty young woman of Brooksville, did he show any signs of emotion. Once when his relations with her came up in evidence he was seen to flush.

The trial today promised to develop into a battle of medical experts. Dr. William P. Boos of Boston, famous pathologist; Professor Frank N. Whittier of Bowdoin College and others were in court when the trial resumed today.

Professor Whittier was on the stand when the session adjourned yesterday, and he took his place again today ready for the continuation of the grilling when Attorney Hurley was giving him when the session closed last evening. Professor Whittier is regarded as the chief medical witness for the prosecution and Dr. Boos for the defense.

SAYS RADIUM IS FAILURE AS A CANCER CURE

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—That radium as a cure for cancer is a failure was the startling declaration made by Dr. John B. Deaver before the convention of the American College of Surgeons.

Surgeons from all parts of the United States and many from South American and European countries were present. Among them were the Mayo brothers of Rochester, Minn., said to be the greatest cancer specialists in the world.

Increasing faith in the value of radium and X-ray of high frequency for the non-surgical treatment of cancer has been felt in the past few years by many specialists.

Thirty Bay State hospitals, beginning with the Boston City Hospital, are on the "approved" list just announced by the American College here.

New England Wives Blame 'In-Laws' for Marital Troubles

CHARGE ALIENATION.

Fathers-in-Law Insist on Dictating to Them Women Declare

By HAZEL CANNING.

The "in-laws," have stepped out into the centre of things, again.

It is time so alleges young Mrs. Dorritt Van Dusen Stevens Woodhouse, of Westfield and Burlington, Vermont, the "in-laws" are the parents of her husband, Charles Douglas Woodhouse, Young Mrs. Woodhouse, whose million dollar suit against Mr. and Mrs. Alonso B. Woodhouse, has just been filed, charges that it was the meddling of her husband's parents, which broke up her marriage.

"They used their wealth to invade his home life," she charges in her libel. "They objected to me, because I was not rich."

Also young Mrs. Woodhouse has gone home to mother. Safely sheltered behind good stone walls of an old New England mansion—she waits in seclusion, probably imagining that her experience with "in-laws," is a case apart. But, if young Mrs. Woodhouse is a philosopher; or if she is at all versed in the history of litigation in exclusive circles, these few years back, she will make up her mind that her suit against interfering parents, is just the most recent of many which have gone before.

Now Mrs. Arnold Lawson, whose new suit against her husband, Arnold Lawson, charging contempt of court, has just been filed, could smile at Mrs. Woodhouse, and answer her—"ah, my dear it's an old, old story—list of parents who will not let their married children alone. Don't think you are the only one, "my dear! For what have I said, in times past about my papa-in-law — Thomas W. Lawson?"

Mrs. Lawson might no sooner finish, than Mrs. Ralph Carpenter, daughter-in-law of George Carpenter, wealthy real estate owner of Boston, and New young Mrs. Woodhouse.

Hampshire, might further inform

"You're not the only one, whose parents have had too many fingers in the matrimonial pie," Mrs. Carpenter might continue. "There was my papa-in-law, George Carpenter. Why, don't you remember, how I explained in court, that once I told him to his face—'you're a good father and a good grandfather, but—a rotten father-in-law!'"

Mrs. Woodhouse's case calls to mind many other famous divorce and alienation suits, where young and beautiful brides have claimed that it was domineering father—son's father—who was all to blame. For instance, Mrs. Lawson. As she explained, a while ago.

"The relations of my husband, Arnold, and myself, were constantly disrupted by father Thomas. Conjure up a picture of the Kaiser, at his most saturnine—and that's my father-in-law. There's only one time when Mr. Thomas Lawson is absolutely happy. It is when he has everybody absolutely under his domination. When I lived in a cottage, on his estate, with my four children, after Arnold had gone off to war the band of Lawson senior, moved among the most petty of my household matters.

"If I wanted chops for dinner, and chicken was more pleasing to his Czar-like fancy—then we would have chicken. If he did not like any arrangement I might make about my little household affairs, he would deal swift punishment. For instance, when displeased about one thing, he took away my motor. The only way, then, that I could get my babies to the beach for their daily swim, was to trundle them over the hot and dusty country roads, myself, in their little cart. "My husband's father is responsible for all my troubles," finished little Mrs. Lawson; "he has persecuted me vilely."

PICKED CHILDREN'S CLOTHES.

Mrs. Carpenter, who, before her marriage, was Margaret Frank, of the handsome Paul sisters of Boston, is equally emphatic in blaming the father of her husband.

"When we were alone," she told the court at the time her case was heard, "he picked out the clothes for Carpenter's father, George Carpenter, interfered with my family affairs, domineered over my child, refused to let me have him when I wanted to go away for a vacation, then the trouble began. So I put a sweater on little Ralph, fatherin-law would insist upon a coat. If I put on a coat, then father would say nothing but a sweater would do.

"If we engaged rooms at the Mount Kineo for my husband, myself and our baby to spend the Summer, the father-in-law would object, and we would have to give up our plans. And, with my husband, whenever the question came up of any new move, it always was—'I'll ask my father.'

"Certainly, the interfering father-in-law, in my case, made me plenty of trouble."

So the wives of modern times and of history might tell their crushing tale to Mrs. Woodhouse, assuming her that a fair, feminine army of thwarted young wives have traveled the interfered-with path before her. So the beautiful Indian maid, Frances Panali, who sued the parents of her best beloved, Mr. and Mrs. Ashburton W. Pinchard, of Norwell, for alienating the affections of their son, Henry, might add her mite of woe.

WIFE AN OUTSIDER.

As deep as life, and old as human nature, sides parental pride, in the fathers and mothers of beloved sons, who marry. It is often wrong, from the family's gates. She may be fair of spirit and of feature; she may have all the graces, and more, the respect and the admiration of men and of women, but still, to parents-in-law, in the love of their own boy first and best and blindly—she is the "other woman," who has taken too great a portion of sonny's affections from their first haven—the proud heart of his mother and father.

So, they are quite sure, no woman, though gifted with the tongues of men and of angels; yea, verily, though could she see through a glass darkly, and had the gift of prophecy besides, were worthy of their Charles Dougiss, of their Ralph, or their Arnold, or their Henry. So, all down history, the "in-laws" lift their loring, meddling fingers. And so, pretty soon after, the suit is filed, about the time when young daughter goes home to her own mamma, and raises the age-old cry—"too much father-in-law!"

DENIES DIVORCE TO MRS. CURTISS DESPITE STORY

Judge Wait at Pittsfield Dismisses Suit After Wife Tells of "Abuse"

Pittsfield, Oct. 25.—Despite her story of alleged abuse and neglect, Mrs. Ethel Quinn Curtiss, attractive society matron of New York and Sheffield, was today denied a divorce from Roy A. Curtiss, son of the late Frank Curtiss, New York traction millionaire.

Judge Wait of Superior Court, who heard the testimony, dismissed the case.

Mrs. Curtiss had claimed the divorce on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment and recited on the witness stand numerous alleged instances of such cruelty.

She said his bad treatment of her commenced in 1920, while they were at their country estate in Sheffield.

Some time later, she alleged, her husband left his home. Dr. William Shannon of New York, the family physician, testified that he tried to get the millionaire to return home and "make up," but that the latter refused.

Mrs. Curtiss had asked for custody of her four minor children.

AUTHOR ACCUSES HIS WIFE OF CRUELTY

Professor Parker, Also Claiming Desertion, Seeks Divorce at Pittsfield

Although William Allen Parker, professor of philosophy and widely-known lecturer and author, admits having signed an agreement with his wife whereby they were "to dwell apart and the prolonged absence of either be not construed as desertion," he has brought suit for divorce, charging cruel and abusive treatment and desertion. The case will come up in the Berkshire Superior Court at Pittsfield Thursday.

Parker charges that after twenty-four years of married life his wife, Emma J. Parker, was cruel to him in Cambridge in 1912, causing him "personal injury and great mental anguish, making him sick and ill and being the cause of preventing him from following his profession and causing him to lose his position and cutting off his means of livelihood."

He also alleges that Mrs. Parker deserted him on June 15, 1913. It is on this phase of the case that the big fight which the attorney for Mrs. Parker, who is Rufus B. Sprague of No. 53 State street, intends making will be waged.

Parker was an assistant in the philosophy department of Harvard in 113. He is now living at Adams, while his wife's residence is at Claremont, Cal.

Attorney Sprague proposes to introduce in evidence the text of an agreement dated at Claremont, Cal., on April 1, 1918, and signed by both the Parkers, to show that Mrs. Parker was strictly within her legal rights in the steps she took, and that there is no basis for the suit.

STILL INSISTS SHE IS DOROTHY ARNOLD

Middleboro, Ct., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Leon Ingraham, who stirred the neighborhood last Summer when she announced, in leaving for New York, that she was the long-missing Dorothy Arnold, has returned to the little hamlet of Durham, near here, where she has made her home. Mrs. Ingraham still insists she is Dorothy Arnold.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Dances for Debutantes Nearly Fill Social Calendar

HAVE you a little debutante in your home?

In answer to this question comes the ready "Yes, indeed," of about seventy-five Bostonian mothers whose daughters are preparing for their big year.

Although several debs have made the well-known bow at teas and dances during the Summer and early Fall, the dinner dance seems to be regarded as the most effective "vehicle" for the newcomer on the social stage, and, of course, many a motherly eye is kept on the quivive these days lest there be disturbing conflicts in presentations among the numerous debutantes.

One of the first of these affairs is the dance which Mr. and Mrs. William Brooks Cabot of Marlboro street are giving on November 4 to present their third daughter, Polly Cabot, in the ball room of the Copley-Plaza.

Shortly after Miss Cabot's presentation comes the tea which Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Cummings are giving to introduce their daughter, Ethel Cummings, on Thursday, November 17, at the Cummings home on Joy street. Ethel will be aided by a corps of fellow-debs, including the Misses Katherine Winslow, Mary Bancroft, Dorothy Brewer, Betty Cole, Marian Fenno, Nina Fletcher, Anna Hall, Mary Hall, Mary Hallowell, Amy Lee, Priscilla Pollard, Frances Sturgis, Alice Lee Thomas, Leonora Trafford, Theresa Winsor and Nell White.

Mrs. David Munson Osborne will usher in December's debutante activities with a dance which she will give on the very first day of the month for her niece, Miss Jane Grew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wigglesworth Grew of Marlboro street. The affair, which promises to be one of the most brilliant of the season, will take place at the Chilton Club, and will be preceded by a dinner of forty covers. Mrs. Osborne (Dorothy Dexter) is the sister of Miss Grew's mother, who was formerly Ruth Dexter. Mr. and Mrs. Osborne, by the way, have taken Mrs. Livermore Wells' house at No. 36 Lime street, for the Winter, after spending the Summer at Nahant.

On December 7 comes the dance at the Hotel Somerset to introduce Miss Mary Chute daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Chute of No. 866 Marlboro street, while two evenings later, a dance at the Wenton Golf Club will mark the presentation of Miss Dorothy Brewer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brewer of "Pigeon Hill," Weston.

Among the college-buds is Grace Helena Bullock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Bullock of Cambridge. Miss Bullock is now at Vassar and will be presented during the Christmas vacation, and her mother has arranged a tea to be given in her honor on Monday afternoon, December 19, in Brattle Hall. Other Cambridge debutantes at Vassar are Harriet Jackson, daughter of Allen B. Jackson, and Mary Bill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Bill.

Another debutante whose formal bow is scheduled for the Christmas month is Josephine Cushman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cushman of Lime street, who are arranging to give a dance for her at the Country Club, while relatives and friends of Miss Cushman are planning other functions in her honor.

Mrs. Livermore Wells, whose house at No. 36 Lime street has been taken for the Winter by Mr. and Mrs. David Munson Osborne, will be in New York city this coming season with her son, Bulkeley Livermore Wells, who graduated from Harvard in '19.

Boston friends of Mrs. Wells will doubtless see her now and then while Mrs. Wells makes her home in New York, for she has two daughters, both married, who are living hereabouts. Only last June the younger daughter, Dorothy, became the bride of Lothrop Motley Weld, and the ceremony at Emmanuel Church was one of the most fashionable of the entire series of June nuptials. I recall that Dorothy's elder sister, Mrs. Henry Davis Bigelow (Barbara Wells), who makes her home in South Lancaster, Mass., was matron of honor at the wedding.

MRS. ROBERT C. HAMLEN

Mrs. Robert C. Hamlen (Catherine Ames Royce) was among the society people who attended the wedding Saturday of Miss Elizabeth St. John Whiting to Alexander Tomes. Mrs. Hamlen, whose wedding last June in Dedham was a notable event, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Page Royce of Dedham.

Random Notes of Prominent Folk in Town and Country

MRS. GEORGE HAGENDORPH of Heath street and Mrs. Arthur T. Bradlee of Hammond street are among the patronesses for the four Chestnut Hill assemblies to be held on Saturday, October 29, and Friday evenings, December 2, January 6 and February 17.

Mrs. Andrew Robeson and her daughter are to be again at the Hotel Abbottsford on Commonwealth avenue for the Winter. They spent the greater part of the Summer at York Harbor, Me.

Mrs. James Dwight has rented her home on Beacon street and will spend the Winter in Brookline to be near her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. Willard Bigelow of Hawes street.

Mrs. George L. De Blois of the Hotel Puritan is registered at the Hotel Chatham, New York City.

WIFE OF 'ROMEO' KEYS WINS ALIMONY

Former Harvard Club Elevator Girl Granted Fees and $20 a Week

Mrs. Florence Giradin Keys, former Harvard Club elevator girl, and twenty-year-old wife of seventy-year-old John Baker "Romeo" Keys, Harvard graduate, clubman and wealthy Cincinnati contractor, has won the first skirmish in their marital troubles now before the courts.

Following an all-day session in the Suffolk County Divorce Court, Judge Burns ordered the ardent "Romeo," who first met his bride two years ago while she was giving him a "lift" in the elevator of the Harvard Club, to pay his wife $1,000 in counsel fees and alimony of $20 a week, retroactive to March 1 of this year.

The attractive young wife also won victory No. 2 when the judge ordered the bill for divorce brought against her by her husband, in which she is charged with infidelity, to be heard November 2.

Waltham Colonial No. 1260 15 Jewels $45 to $75 Depending upon the Case

Accuracy

ACCURACY in time-keeping is worth infinitely more than what you pay for it.

A platinum and diamond cased watch that will not keep time is no more useful than a retired alarm clock on the ash heap.

Accurate time-keeping can only come from extreme accuracy in the making of the "parts" inside the watch.

Do you know that if the measurement of some vital part varies but the fraction of a human hair, that watch in which such variation exists will always register a continuous loss or gain?

Waltham accuracy in time-keeping is a result of absolute accuracy in making every part of a Waltham Watch.

That is why your watch selection should be a Waltham.

Mineralava from the decayed pores that offer a beautiful complexion

History's Fatal Mistake Founded Beauty Science of Today

By VERNON RADCLIFFE

YEARS ago in Florence, Benvenuto Cellini, decided to accomplish a perfect work of art. He secured a model, and gilded the living body from head to foot. The result was beautiful but mistaken. When the pores were all closed by the gilt—within two hours, the child died.

Cellini's idea has not been outgrown. It persists with the modern complexion. Beauty Science of today is based on knowledge of the skin.

Closing the Pores To-day

To-day the care of the complexion has become increasingly necessary, increasingly hard.

The trains roar back and forth. The streets throb continuously from the exhausts of motor cars. The factories seep down clouds of sooty vapor. Beauty has been fading earlier and earlier.

For, despite the dust and impurities that modern life forces deep down into the skin, we still further impose soaps, creams, lotions and cosmetics. Have you assurance that tired Nature can expel the added burden in the pores?

Your Skin Must Breathe

These impurities must come out. Nothing put on the face can possibly be of benefit if the pores beneath are clogged, and to-day they are clogged as they never were before.

A skin cannot be healthy, a complexion cannot be beautiful, if clogged pores do not permit the skin to breathe, to eliminate, to throw off impurities. When the pores are free and functioning the complexion has a natural glow. When they are clogged, fermentation sets in, the face sinks into sallowness, wrinkles and blemishes.

Old Treatments Fail

Women have turned in desperation to massage, the vigorous action of human hands. Unscientific face massage has made more old women than age. To parboil your skin with half scalding water, and knead and maul the muscles of your face is bound to be injurious. Massaging does not remove dirt, foreign substances and impurities from the place where they do the real damage—down below the surface of the skin. Your Beauty Specialist will tell you so.

Very recent has been the complete change in beauty method by the best specialists and parlors.

Vivaudou's Discovery

Victor Vivaudou, famous perfumer, discovered that the better Beauty Shops were using a preparation so wonderful in its effect upon the complexion that he arranged for its sole distribution in the home. He says about Mineralava! "I have seen its amazing benefits—its amazing success. It is delightful to use. No more wonderful contribution to comfort and cleanliness has ever been devised!"

Answers Modern Needs

Mineralava is the one way to a good complexion—the best way—no startling, no revolutionary in idea, no different from any treatment that you have known, that you cannot afford not to know it—to try it.

Instead of being just one more thing to put on the face, to rub in the pores, Mineralava takes out. It cleanses the clogged pores—washes off—and is gone, all in twelve minutes.

Mineralava—Cold Water—Face Finish

Mineralava, Nature's Beauty Clay, originated by Mrs. M. G. Scott and perfected by her through 23 years of scientific research and experiment, accomplishes two important results—it withdraws impurities from the pores and it tightens sagging muscles.

As it dries it contracts. You feel its medicinal ingredients penetrate the depths of the pores. You feel it withdraw foreign matter.

You feel the wrinkles smooth out. You feel the flabby skin made tight. You feel the cleansing purifying blood tingle through each tiny vein.

Immediately, a blooming youthfulness glows and radiates from the cheeks. Mineralava Face Finish is a necessary skin food and tonic, acts as a mild bleach and forms a perfect base for your face powder. You apply it at the proper time, after the pores are cleansed.

Lasting Beauty of Complexion

Continue this treatment regularly twice a week and we guarantee, whether you are sixteen or sixty, a marked improvement in your complexion—reducing blackheads, pimples, enlarged pores, wrinkles, blemishes of all kinds—preserving beauty and youthfulness.

Ask for Mineralava TO-DAY

Go to your druggist or department store to-day and ask for the Mineralava set containing fifteen home treatments. If yours has not got it, do not be satisfied with an imitation. Write Mrs. Scott herself. She will gladly inform you where it may be obtained. You may try Mineralava right away by mailing the coupon with 25c for the demonstration tube of two full treatments.

TIMELY BEAUTY HINTS

Society women wash their own hair, not because it is a fad, but because they wish to obtain the greatest possible hair beauty and be sure they are not using anything harmful. They have found that in washing the hair it is never wise to use a makeshift, but is always advisable to use a preparation made for shampooing only. Many of our friends say they get the best results from a simple home-made canthrox mixture. You can use this at a cost of about 1 cents a shampoo by getting some canthrox from your druggist and dissolving a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes enough shampoo liquid to apply to all the hair instead of just the top of the head, as with most preparations. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear in the rinsing water. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you. —Advertisement.

Dyed Her Wrap, Skirt, Sweater, and Draperies

Every "Diamond Dyes" package tells how to dye or tint any worn, faded garment or drapery a new rich color that will not streak, spot, fade or run. Perfect home dyeing is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes even if you have never dyed before. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. For fifty-one years millions of women have been using "Diamond Dyes" to add years of wear to their old, shabby waists, skirts, dresses, coats, sweaters, stockings, draperies, hangings, everything.—Advertisement.

PRETTY FORGER LAYS DISGRACE TO WHIPPINGS

Disowned Daughter of Rich East Boston Man Says Hunger Drove Her to Steal

Pretty twenty-four-year-old Phoebe Desmond, alias Phoebe Phillips, disowned daughter of a wealthy East Boston coal dealer, attributes her "downfall" to beatings by her father, which forced her to shift for herself. Hunger and need of clothes, she says, led her to steal.

Now she has fallen afoul of the law. She is charged with forgery and larceny of $48 from David Smart of No. 19 Temple place, and with the larceny of merchandise valued at $71 from Thresher Brothers, who occupy the same building.

But she denies the David Smart charge and admits guilt only in the case of Thresher Brothers, by passing of a worthless check. She is being held in $700 bail for a continued hearing in the Municipal Court on November 1.

UNDER SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

Police say the girl is now under a suspended sentence of six months, following her arrest on August 9, charged with attempted larceny from another store catering to women, and back in June, 1920, was arrested and charged with the theft of $1,700 from a coffee company on Canal street, and the Commonwealth Fruit Company of Clinton street.

"I guess I was the 'black sheep' of our family," said the young woman at her home, No. 219 Huntington avenue, today.

MARRIED AT SEVENTEEN.

"I was married when only seventeen years old. But my husband would not support me, and he treated me cruelly. Then came the baby and after I secured a divorce I went with my folks to live.

"If I came home late my father would be waiting for me so he could beat me. Once he hit me on the face with a whip so hard that there was a mark there for weeks. Finally they drove me away.

"I managed to learn how to keep books and got work on Canal street in a coffee concern. They would not pay me enough to live on. I lived with friends. I needed clothes and did not want to 'sponge' on my friends. So I raised checks and they caught me."

FALSIFIED BANK STATEMENT.

The police say the young woman's method of theft was novel. They said she would first "raise" a check and then each month she was on hand early at the bank to secure her employer's statement.

She erased and altered the bank's statement until it corresponded with the amount the firm expected was there. Her case in this instance was not pressed.

FEW NEW ENGLAND MEN BECOMING MINISTERS

Fewer theological students are coming from New England than from the West and South, declared Alfred E. Stearns, principal of Phillips Andover Academy, at a meeting of the Boston Congregational Club in Ford Hall. The speaker asserted that the old typical Christian American was in fast disappearing, and added that the present-day college man does not come from such an environment.

ACCUSED OF DISCHARGING NATIONAL GUARDSMEN

Worcester, Oct. 25.—Charged with discharging two of his employes because they left their positions to attend the annual tour of duty with a guard regiment at Camp Devens, Samuel Wolfson will be arraigned before the Superior Court. A true bill has been returned against Wolfson by the grand jury. Wolfson is proprietor of the Globe Manufacturing Company at No. 64 Jackson street. The two men said to have been discharged are Corporal James N. Hollywood and Private Fritz F. Erickson, of the Third Infantry. Wolfson denies that he discharged the men.

MANY WOMEN SEEK WORK AT INDUSTRIAL UNION

Plans to relieve the unemployment situation in Massachusetts will be formulated shortly by the Women's Educational and Industrial Union as the result of a meeting at which reports were made by representatives of women's industries throughout Boston. The union's employment bureau, it was said, placed 18 out of 631 applicants for positions last week, and in the week previous placed 17 out of 618 women. A sub-committee has been appointed to consider methods for relieving the situation.

HARDINGS LEAVE FOR TRIP THROUGH SOUTH

Washington, Oct. 25. — President Harding left Washington today for a three-day trip into the South, which will be featured by important speeches at Atlanta and Birmingham. It will be the President's last trip before the armament limitation conference convenes in Washington. Accompanying the President were Mrs. Harding, Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of the Interior Fall and Senator and Mrs. Oscar Underwood of Alabama.

CONNECTICUT MAN KILLS WIFE, SHOOTS HIMSELF

Middletown, Ct., Oct. 25.—Frederick Harrison, thirty years old, who has been a patient at a sanitarium in Hartford for some time, shot and killed his wife, Nellie, in her room at a boarding house here today and then turning the revolver upon himself, fired two shots, one through his head and another through the chest. He was taken to the hospital in a critical condition. Jealousy and probable insanity are believed to be the cause of his action.

ALL EXPLOSIVES UNDER GUARD IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Oct. 25.—All dynamite and other high explosives stored in Worcester must be placed under guard, night and day, by those owning or controlling such goods, according to notice served today by Chief Edward Jones of the fire department. The order was issued to Chief Jones by State Fire Marshal George Neal. It is understood that the order is an aftermath of the attempted bombings of public officials in Europe by communists protesting against the conviction of Sacco and Vanzetti. The order closely follows reported thefts of dynamite in Boston.

UNDERCURRENT HAS ITS FIRST PERFORMANCE

Somerville Players Appear in New Play Written by W. H. McMasters

Yesterday the Somerville Players staged the first public performance of a new play, "The Undercurrent," by William H. McMasters. Here Mr. McMasters has started out with a strong and rather daring idea, that of soul-transmission. It is a striking angle and one that requires careful handling. He has been wise in treating it in a comedy vein.

Jason Mills, head of a large mining concern, has reached that stage where he has become crabbed. He is under a doctor's care, which seems to send him on to nervousness. Consequently the rest of the family and his associates get the brunt of it.

Later Mills is hurt in an accident and is rushed off to the hospital, where he undergoes an operation from which it looks as if he could not possibly recover. Suddenly he seems to be revived and a new soul is torn into him—while in the next room a five-hours-old baby dies. From then on Mills is kept busy clearing up and smoothing over the rumpus caused by his "old soul."

Frank Thomas plays the role of Jason Mills with good comedy effect, and Henry Crossen gets many laughs as the English butler with a sense of humor. Enid Markey is seen as mixen, the daughter, while others of the cast include Florence Coventry, John Milligan, Arthur Howard and J. A. Arnold. J. H. Doyle and E. Anderson did particularly well as the miners' representatives.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—William S. Hart's Paramount production, "Three Word Brand," an unusually clever western photoplay, was exceedingly well received on its presentation at Gordon's Olympic Theatre yesterday. It is a strong picture story in which Mr. Hart essays three distinct roles and in each portrayal he is as usual artistic and convincing.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—A number of prominent screen players, widely-known individually and perfectly adapted to the characterizations they portray, support Robert Bosworth in "Blind Hearts," his first independent starring vehicle, which is the feature at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre this week.

GORDON'S STRAND AND CENTRAL SQUARE—Unquestionably one of the greatest motion pictures produced in a decade is Cecil B. De Mille's tremendous Paramount production of "The Affairs of Anatol," which scored an emphatic hit at Gordon's Strand and Gordon's Central Square theatres yesterday. The picture marks an epoch in American screen production.

GORDON'S OLD SOUTH—"Woman's Place," a corking good Constance Talmadge picture, is the attraction this week at Gordon's Old South. It began its engagement last night to a crowded house, providing the audience with some of the best entertainment of the year.

WALDRON'S CASINO—A group of exceptionally capable comedians and comediennes, supported by a large and brilliant chorus, appeared in "Keep Smiling," at Waldron's yesterday. This popular burlesque production contains many original features that provide continuous merriment from the rise of the curtain to the grand finale.

BOSTON THEATRE—"Man and Woman," a story of human derelicts seeking solace on a South Sea Isle, is the feature at the Boston Theatre this week. Diana Allen, Joe King and an all-star cast portray this one of the strongest stories ever flashed upon a screen.

FRANKLIN PARK THEATRE—The Franklin Park Theatre is presenting the first half of the week Blaine Hammerstein in her latest production, "Handcuffs or Kisses," the startling screen story of prison practices. Also a bill of select vaudeville.

Coming Events

ARLINGTON THEATRE—The Boston Society of Singers will present Wagner's most melodious opera, "Lohengrin" for the week starting Monday, at the Arlington Theatre, November 14. "The Jewels of the Madonna" was originally slated for that week, but the requests to hear Wagner's music drama were so insistent that the change was decided upon. The repertoire is as follows: Week of Monday, October 31, "Lakme;" week of Monday, November 7, "Aida;" week of Monday, November 14, "Lohengrin."

SHUBERT THEATRE—The seat sale for the New York Winter Garden's "Passing Show of 1921," coming to the Shubert Theatre next Monday, opens Thursday morning.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—Holbrook Blinn as a "greaser" bandit will be a new kind of Holbrook Blinn for Bostonians when he appears at the Plymouth Theatre next Monday in the Porter Emerson Browne play, "The Bad Man."

Fresh From Paris—Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

A GOWN of mauve chiffon, for tea and informal dinners, is much enhanced by the ecru lace supplied so generously on bodice, sleeves and skirt. Deep blue-mauve taffeta binds the square neck line and sleeves and makes the girdle, with its sash ends at each side—one, of course, falling below the evenly pointed skirt edge. Many new models show the silhouette, the wide long sleeves and the irregular hem line appearing in this frock.

GRECIAN simplicity is the keynote of a slender dinner gown which uses black satin crepe as its tissue and highly embroiders several edges with gold. The neck line is round, there are no sleeves at all, and the bodice blouses gracefully at the normal waist line. A short panel and a narrow tunic, one fold of which reaches all the way to the ground, are persuasions of the smartest Winter mode.

MOTION PICTURE News and Notes

By FRIEDA DAVIS

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

"THE GREAT IMPERSONATION" at the Modern and Beacon Theatres this week is a great impersonation indeed. Here James Kirkwood has given us a double role in which one character resembles the other so little that there it keeps the picture from being ridiculous. It is a highly individual and clever piece of work.

Again we have an Oppenheim novel transferred to the screen, and again we have an ideal film story. John Dewinter, a German, and Everard Dominey, son of an English lord, are classmates in Oxford. After their graduation, Dominey goes to Africa lion-hunting, while Dewinter becomes Leopold von Ragostein and carries on Kultur in Africa, trailing the blacks to do the goose-step.

Von Ragestein has been driven there through trouble in a duel over Princess Josephanie Hilderstrom, while Dominey is there because his wife has gone insane, believing him to be a murderer, and she cannot recover while he is there. Here a plan suggests itself to the mind of the German against "der Tag." I shan't go into it further, for it would spoil the end. Suffice it to say that the plot is unique in many aspects and altogether interesting.

George Melford has directed the story to excellent advantage. The African and English scenes are well put on, while the fine acting is direct and straightforward; straightforward, that is to say, in so far as double exposures permit. Here the action is not disturbed in wondering that Kirkwood can and does pat himself on the back, shake hands with himself and carry himself about. One reason is, as I said, that he has made himself up to look different as the German, and the other is that he differentiates between the natural and racial characteristics of the two men.

Ann Forrest is seen as the ensane wife. She gives a convincing portrayal, though I fail to see any reason for her suspicions that the man who comes back from Africa is not her husband.

Alice Brady does not fare well with her new production, "Dawn of the East," which is also at the Modern and Beacon. It seems about time that she were given a plausible, even a passable story, and one that gives her ample opportunity to show what she can do. Alice Brady can do a great deal. She is today one of our best emotional actresses.

With "Dawn of the East," she does the best she can. In other words, her performance is a highly satisfying one. The only thought that intrudes is, what wonders she could do with a really good play and part! Here she is a Russian countess who is thrown to China, where she becomes a "Sing-song girl."

She is rescued from that and sent to America, where it looks for a time as if a worse fate were to befall her. Of course, it doesn't, but it is turned away in a particularly weak and uninspiring manner.

TREMONT TEMPLE—The characters one meets in William Fox's sensational photoplay, "Over the Hill," which last night entered upon the third month of its engagement in Boston, are such that are observed in every walk of life.

Plays That Remain

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—"In the Night Watch" began its last week at the Boston Opera House last night. Its tremendous scenic effects alone are worth the price of admission.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—Margaret Anglin, at the Plymouth Theatre, entered upon her last week in "The Woman of Bronze," a play which affords her exceptional opportunities.

WILBUR THEATRE—"The Rose Girl," at the Wilbur, is the only legitimate musical comedy in town, and it is enjoying the popularity resulting from that fact, and the antics of Fred Hillebrand.

COLONIAL THEATRE—Only this week and next remain of the engagement of the "Ziegfeld Follies" at the Colonial Theatre. Last night's crowded house testified to the allurements of this, the fifteenth of the famous series, and assures the engagement will preserve the invariable custom of capacity audiences throughout its Boston run.

TREMONT THEATRE—"Little Old New York" began the final half of its engagement at the Tremont Theatre last evening, with its departure marked for November 5. Genevieve Tobin, its youthful star, has made the most pleasant impressions in the leading role.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—Ethel Barrymore began the last two weeks of her Boston engagement in the greatest dramatic success, "Declassee," at the Hollis Street Theatre last evening. This play, by Zoe Akins, affords the display of Miss Barrymore's refined art and is a brilliant example of good play-writing.

HUSSEY REVUE IS MAJESTIC HEADLINER

Comedy, Music and Dancing in Great Variety Offered by Shubert Performers

Jimmy Hussey is at the Majestic this week. He has his Century Revue, his comedians, his beautiful girls, his amusing Yiddish dialect and his smile with him. He and his performers are easily the topliners on what is an excellent bill throughout.

Harr Earle and his "Eight Girls" constitute the second best act on a good bill. They sing fairly well, play numerous musical instruments unusually well and introduce the comedy talking banjo. Dave Vine, with a talent for dialect, and Lucila Temple, who has a good voice, appear in "Making Nonsense An Art."

Joe Jackson, a local favorite, appears in his well-known "Weary Willy" make-up and does a pantomime "Stealing a Bicycle." The Zeigler Sisters present a series of dances, ranging from Scotch and Spanish folk dances to the most modern steps of the "interpretative" school. Buddy Doyle does blackface. The Rath Brothers, in an unusually convincing "strong man" bit, bring the show up to the Hussey offering and the climax of the show. There are the usual news and comic pictures.

MIDGET TROUPE ARE DELIGHT AT KEITH'S

Singer's midgets make this week's bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre an unusually good tonic for the jaded theatregoer. It is in fact a variety program, with not too much dancing and not too much music.

But Leo Singer's troupe of midgets furnish the novelty. In two diverse scenes they present a mixture of entertainment that leaves no doubt of their ability and talent.

They have three elephants, ponies and dogs with them, and seldom is such a large vaudeville production put on with such lightning speed. Scenes are shifted before one's eyes.

"IL TROVATORE" SUNG AT THE ARLINGTON

"Il Trovatore" is this week's offering at the Arlington Theatre by the Boston Society of Singers. The opera was well received by an exceptionally large audience.

Miss Morrill, in the role of Leonora, is delightful. She has a good voice and her acting is all that could be desired.

The role of Manrico is well sung by Arnold, while Whitcomb, as Ferrando, is also pleasing.

Miss Ainslee, as Azucena, scored perhaps the biggest success of the opera. She responded to several curtain calls.

BIG SHOW AT THE GAYETY THEATRE

A good example of the heights to which modern burlesque can soar is give in "The Greenwich Village Revue," a striking production, which is playing a week's engagement at the Gayety Theatre.

The piece is a 100 per cent. fun offering with much of the hilarity centering in the ten-scene skit "Such Is Life," which gives the chief comedian, Frank Harcourt, splendid opportunity to display his talents as a fun maker extraordinary.

GIVE A BABY SYRUP PEPSIN

Constipation, biliousness and like annoying ills will quickly disappear

A MOTHER is always anxious to give the safest and best medicine to a constipated baby, but is puzzled which to select. Let her decide by the ingredients on the package.

Every bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the formula printed plainly on the outside of the carton under the portrait of Dr. Caldwell, who wrote the prescription in 1892. You will find that it is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It will not gripe the baby, and it is free from narcotics. A bottle sufficient to last a family several months can be had at any drug store, and the cost is only about a cent a dose.

While no one, young or old, need take a drastic purgative like salts or calomel, be especially careful what you give a child. Some contain minerals, coal tar and other drugs that might prove dangerous by over stimulating the intestines or depressing the heart. The ingredients of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are recommended by the U. S. Pharmacopoeia.

Half-Ounce Bottle Free

Free except constipation, as even if you do not suffer occasional spells of this nature, we will send you a Half-Ounce Trial Bottle of my Syrup Pepsin FREE OF CHARGE so that you may have it handy, when needed. Simply send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 514 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Write me today.

BLUENOSE MAY RACE AT NEW BEDFORD

Skipper Ready to Compete With Mayflower There If Stake Is Large Enough

By Associated Press.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 25.—Canada has lifted, with the schooner Bluenose, the fishermen's international racing trophy, but the fishermen of Nova Scotia and the United States have not had their fill of sport.

There is talk of taking the Bluenose to New Bedford, Mass., for a race or two against the schooner Mayflower, which was barred from competing in the trophy race trials by the race committee.

Backers of the Mayflower believe she will be able to trim the Canadian craft. With only her lowers set, the Boston vessel made an impromptu appearance in the final trophy race yesterday, but got in at an inopportune time, ran into heavy seas and dropped out.

Captain Angus Walters, skipper of the Bluenose, has declared he would consent to a meeting of his craft and the Mayflower if the stake were large enough.

The American International Race Committee gave a dinner last night to Captain Walters and the Canadian Committee. Charles D. Brown, former mayor of Gloucester, presided. Speakers included Lieutenant-Governor Macallum Grant, of Nova Scotia; W. W. Lufkin, collector of customs of the port of Boston, personal representative of President Harding; E. H. Armstrong, Minister of Public Works for Nova Scotia; Edwin N. Gunsaulus, American Consul General at Halifax; Captain George H. Peeples, Gloucester, Master Mariners' Association, representing Governor Cox of Massachusetts; Mayor Percy W. Wheeler, of Gloucester; Captain Koch, of the United States Navy; W. H. Bennis, of the Halifax Herald; Mayor Vidito of Dartmouth, F. J. Duffy, Boston; Captain Angus Walters, of the Bluenose, and H. R. Silver, chairman of the Halifax Race Committee.

Americans Are Paying German Workers $1.75 a Week

An American corporation, owning an industrial concern in Germany, is amazed to find that it is paying its factory hands there but $1.75 a week. It is paying 250 marks a week, which when converted into American currency at 70 cents a hundred means $1.75.

This contrasts with a "par value" of $60 just a few years ago.

Textile men who have been investigating this Summer the industrial situation in Germany have unanimously reported that textile workers in Germany were not getting above 55 cents a day in American money.

SIMMONS PRESIDENT THANKS CONTRIBUTORS

In announcing that the Simmons College Endowment Fund had reached the $815,000 mark, Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, of Chestnut Hill, chairman of the campaign executive committee, gave out a statement from President Lefavour of Simmons College, in which the latter paid public tribute to the manner in which the friends of the college and the public in general had responded to the appeal of Simmons College.

President Lefavour stated that, as formerly announced, the campaign would continue until the $1,000,000 fund was completed.

An Aid to Wearing This Season's Fashions

(Helps to Beauty)

Here is a simple, enfolding way to rid the skin of objectionable hairs: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface, apply and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This is quite harmless, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the delatone in an original package.—Advertisement.

U. S. SOLDIER'S LOVE FOR GIRL LANDS HIM IN BRITISH JAIL

OL' SOL'S PALS! Or perhaps a better title is: "Midsummer Day Dreams." The dreams, of course, are pictured in carefree, reclining poses. These fair sea nymphs of London are taking advantage of the strange heat wave that swept England recently. (W. W.)

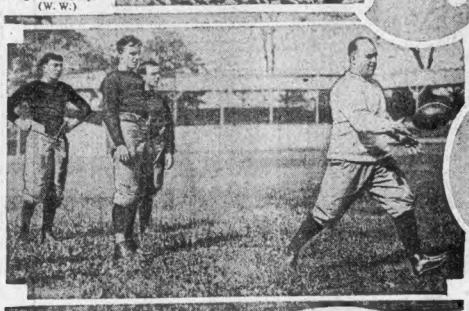
CARELESS GRACE! That's the keynote of this saucy but fashionable little hat of feathers, satin, velvet and straw. A Winter gem. (U. & U.)

LILLIAN COLLIER, painting up her rendezvous for ten hounds in Chicago. She's gonna call it the "Wind Blew Inn." Fresh patrons will get the air. (Int.)

TOUCH! Major F. W. Honeycutt, captain of the American fencing team, who crosses foils next month with England's D'Artagnans for world title. The major is U. S. champion for 1921. (W. W.)

MRS. WILLIAM STEARNS, Belgian girl, who eloped to England with U. S. soldier, taking hubby food after he had been jailed at behest of her father. (Int.)



CHARLEY BRICKLEY, a little balder, but just as accurate of toe, is pictured giving the Fordham University fledglings a lesson in the toe technique. Charley divides stocks and bonds with football these days. (Int.)

MRS. BESSIE P. BRUEGGEMAN, of St. Louis, has just been named a member of the commission in charge of compensation for injured civil service workers. Int.

LUCKY LEON! Tripping the light fantastic artistically with Leon Errol always means a good job for the girl. He has probably "found" more good dancers than any other single chap (referring to number, not celibacy). Shown trying out an applicant. Seems like the girls want to kick (Int.)

MARY ASTOR, luminous and delectable, starring in pictures founded on famous paintings. Posing as "The Beggar Maid," idea is backed by Boston men.

RADIO is now used by the Chicago police to assure criminals. Autos are completely equipped with wireless. Picture above and at right shows a police auto reporting to headquarters by radio. Orders are also sent out to the machines by wireless. (Int.)

FASHION NOTE! Smoking has become so fashionable that even the Manila maid is hitting the post prandial cheroot. They rail their own cigarettes, not stockings. (U. & U.)

FOR THY NAME IS VANITY! Behind a mask of jollity and good nature covering many a heartache, these unhappy victims of too many chocolates and not enough exercise continue their contortions in an effort to rival the graceful curves of the Venus of Milo. Atop Madison Square Garden they prance, dance, steam and boom, fume and boom under the careful guidance of Dr. Copeland, New York's health commissioner, and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien. Many remarkable cases of weight reduction have been recorded thus far in the experiment, which is held primarily to enable the subjects to attend the Health Exposition at the Grand Central Palace on Nov. 14. Photo shows a few of the women doing one of the reducing exercises. (Int.)

HOLD YOUR PARTNERS TIGHT! Of course you remember (assuming that you are a member of the old school) when the "rannie dannie" thrilled Revere Beach patrons. The price was high, but nothing was too good for you and the "aniest girl." What did you care for a whole nickel in those days? Gosh, the scenic railways of today, with their 80-foot drops, never made you gulp harder when the old rail went up high on your side. This photo, by the way, was taken at Coney Island when Hector was a pup. Note the styles of the riders. (Int.)

RUSSIAN SINGER TO MAKE PLEA, HAPGOOD SAYS

Appearance of Chaliapin Will Give U. S. Chance to Aid Starving, Writer Declares

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Chaliapin, the greatest singer of Russia, and perhaps the greatest dramatic singer alive, is hurrying toward these shores on the deck of the Adriatic. He is coming to sing for the starving millions of his fellow countrymen. His presence will give our people a chance to show their sympathy with suffering such as America has never known.

The recent record of the Europeans is thoroughly bad in regard to the famine. It is a touching fact that hungry Germany has spared some food for the Russians, but the concert of the powers has treated starvation as of less importance than the Tsar's bonds.

Dr. Nansen protested in a stirring speech against putting the lives of from twenty to thirty million people, now threatened with starvation, in the scale against politics and investments.

SAFE RELIEF MEDIUM.

Dr. Nansen stated that Mr. Hoover's organization was prepared only to feed three million children. Since then it has in addition made itself the safest and most exact method of transmitting help to individuals.

Dr. Nansen also mentioned that his organization had received from the Pope a gift of a million lire. From the Save-the-Children Fund of Great Britain, he had received the assurance that they would take care of two hundred and fifty thousand children.

The second or anti-Bolshevik international gave ten million marks. Acting as a government, Sweden has started an expedition in co-operation with Nansen and also with the Red Cross.

In sharp contrast to the government of Sweden stands the attitude of the "International Famine Relief Association."

The Manchester Guardian, which has been the most accurate newspaper in Europe on Russian affairs from the beginning of the revolution, observes that the "debts of the old Tsar's government have been foisted upon the Russian babies."

In other words, before credits will be granted by the commission "the existing debts and obligations must be first recognized by Soviet Russia."

BASED ON LOANS.

These debts and obligations were partly based on loans made to the Tsar to cement the military alliance, and partly incurred in subsidizing Kolchak, Denekin, Wrangel, Yudenich and Poland to keep up war on the Soviets.

These wars brought about the famine, and now the policy of the European governments, dominated by France, is to let the Russian people starve unless they pay what it cost the western nations to bring the famine about.

This brutal policy was vigorously attacked in the League of Nations Assembly by Lord Robert Cecil, as well as by Dr. Nansen. Nansen is particularly outraged by the steady campaign of lies intended to keep private charity from doing what the governments themselves are too selfish, stupid and archaic to do.

As the Guardian, fighting almost alone in Europe for a nobler standpoint, puts it: "Governments are impersonal; they have no sense of shame. But the shame that would rest on the individual and the people that refused such help to Russia as it could fairly give would be real and personal, without parallel and without end."

The governments look with calm on deaths in Russia, likely to be about three times as numerous as the sacrifices killed on both sides in the World War.

The governments refuse the $25,000,000 necessary to control this horror, not because they cannot afford it, for the famine will cost Europe far more than the credits would cost.

KNOW ONLY POLITICS.

No, they refuse them because they know nothing at bottom except politics, and the blind cruelty that goes with the mind that is more political than human.

Canada is exporting three times as much wheat as would be needed to meet the Russian needs. In the United States wheat has been rotting because there was no profit in selling it.

Such is the human race. Meantime the great Russian singer is welcome. Thousands of Americans will soon hear the voice that has helped Russia to bear its agony, with its tragic power, with its never-failing sweetness, and with its purpose to help the starving millions.

Claims Startling Rejuvenation After Animal Gland Pills

Boston Man, Weak and Run-down for Months, Gains 20 Pounds and Feels 20 Years Younger.

"After being in a weakened and run-down condition for many months, during which it seemed every bit of vitality left my body, today I feel 20 years younger and have never had more energy and ambition than I have right now. My friends say they never saw me looking better and I never hesitate to tell them that it is Glandex Compound, the new gland tonic, that put me on my feet again," said Mr. Edward Malloy, of 36 Sarsfield St., Boston.

"My ill health began with an attack of pneumonia two years ago. I had no appetite, could gain no strength, my kidneys got out of order and I suffered with dizzy headaches, was frightfully nervous and slept very poorly.

"I had only taken Glandex a few days when I noticed a big improvement. I have taken three bottles, yet I have gained 20 pounds. My stomach and kidneys are in fine condition again and I have fully regained my health and vitality. My Nerves are calm and I sleep fine every night, so can't say too glad to recommend Glandex to others."

The reason Glandex gives such amazing results is so many cases is because it helps build up run-down glands—which science now says are the cause of many run-down conditions. Glandex feeds rundown human glands with extracts taken from the glands of vigorous sheep and cattle. Practically on the same principle as re-charging a storage battery! Also contains iron and other well known health builders.

If weak, pale, thin or generally run-down try this remarkable tonic. Brings results—or your money back. Has helped thousands to regain health and strength. Try a bottle. Sold at good druggists everywhere.

TOWN COLLECTOR OF MANSFIELD REMOVED

Mansfield, Oct. 25.—Charging disloyalty to the town manager form of government, Manager Eldredge R. Conant served notice on Town Treasurer and Collector Frank W. Bernard to leave his office. No successor has been appointed. This is the first removal under the new form of government, and it came as a surprise to the town, although there was known to be some disagreement between the two men.

HARVARD TO HAND OUT SOUND SPANKING TO 'PRAYING COLONELS'

By CHARLES E. PARKER

Giving Centre College a sound spanking and packing the so-called "Praying Colonels" back to the mountain fastnesses of "Old Kaintuck," is the Harvard undertaking of this week.

The Colonels are not coming to Cambridge as possible conquerors of the Crimson. The publicity drive that preceded last season's northward jaunt of the Centre College team and led many to believe the Kentuckians would meet the crimson on even terms or better, is lacking in punch this year, for the misconstruction of Centre's strength, which strangely prevailed even after Harvard had proved its defense to be as stalwart as a cheap grade of tissue paper, was corrected, or should have been, when one week later Georgia Tech held the Colonel's scoreless while rolling up four touchdowns.

Centre's team comes this year as a reasonably good small college eleven with one backfield star, "Bo" McMillin, and a young million of offensive plays which may work, and then again it may not, and which will not be given the opportunity of working that prevailed in last year's Harvard-Centre contest.

* * *

A portion of Greater Boston's football public (it is more or less partial favoring of the "little fellas" against the "big fellas," was so impressed by the fact Centre scored two touchdowns against the Crimson last year that it entirely overlooked certain other happenings in that contest.

* * *

It saw the game start with a Harvard surge which, in seven plays, carried eighty yards and produced a Crimson touchdown, and which indicated then and there just what Harvard could do to the Colonels did Harvard so choose. But when Harvard did not chose to so do, but adopted the most unusual generalship ever exhibited by a Harvard team, this portion of the Stadium audience forgot completely the earlier happenings of the game. ..

* * *

This unusual generalship found Harvard kicking on first downs from close to its own goal line. Such kicks, made by a team that showed it could score at will against the Colonels, gave the latter team the ball in Harvard territory on three occasions and once through a series of rushes and once by means of a wild forward pass that missed the hands of two Harvard men who were rooting under it Centre produced touchdowns.

* * *

Promptly thereafter Harvard resumed its standard system of play. There was no more punting on first down from points close to the Crimson goal line, and Harvard tasted of furnishing Centre with opportunities to display its attack held on to the ball, and despite the employment of second and third string players, acquired thirty-one points.

* * *

Centre College rooters before the game became exceedingly peeved at a statement appearing in this column to the effect, "Harvard can score as many touchdowns against Centre as Harvard desires." One of their number, after the game, dropped into the office to admit the correctness of this 1929 forecast, and to announce that the next Centre College eleven would know something about defensive play.

* * *

This season's Centre College team may know something about defensive play. At the start of the season Thornhill, a former Pittsburgh lineman, joined the Centre coaching staff, and reports of Centre's first three games indicated that the Colonels spent the major portions of their Saturday afternoons in defensive play. As Harvard did to Centre, so Centre did to these early opponents, giving the latter opportunity to attack, and while the teams they played were not noted for their attacking strength it is true that only one of their number, St. Xavier College, succeeded in crossing Centre's goal line.

* * *

Picking a Glen Warner product as a line coach was possibly not the best action possible for Centre College. Warner's linemen usually play excellent offensive football primarily on their chief stock in trade that of diving and grabbing legs. The diving prevents the ones from controlling his course after the dive or gaining his feet in time to be of further service in checking the play, while grabbing legs is distinctly against the rules and very apt to draw penalties.

* * *

However, most any type of defensive play would mean a one thousand per cent. improvement over that displayed by the Colonels last Fall, and, were it not for the fact that Harvard in their Penn State game evidenced a counting and scoring attack, Centre College might appear as a real threat.

* * *

Now that Harvard has shown it can carry the ball, the one necessary requirement for the proposed spanking of the Colonels would seem to be that of gaining and retaining possession of the pigskin.

* * *

Defensively Harvard still is far away from the form displayed at this stage of the season in the last dozen years and consequently Harvard can ill afford to grant Centre the scoring opportunities Centre enjoyed in 1926.

* * *

Not the least impressive thing one notices when visiting New Haven is the spirit of the Elis football players.

* * *

Cliques no longer exist on the squad and "swelled heads." If there are any, seem to accommodate themselves to hats of ordinary size.

* * *

You may hear Quarterback O'Hearn boosting the ability of Quarterback Beckett, and Quarterback Becket boosting the ability of Quarterback O'Hearn, and other players extolling the football wares of the very men who are opposing them for starting positions. One and all are out to put Yale back on the football map, each willing to do his part, however prominent or insignificant that part may be.

* * *

The physical condition of the players is another circle of favorable comment. Yale, after a long period of blindness to the harm of long, brutal scrimmaging each day of the week, now contents itself with two scrimmages in each seven days, and instead of worn-out spiritless athletes, too tired to learn and physically unfit to perform at their best, you now find them happy, anxious to learn, and wondering why, when they feel so good, they are not given more hard work.

* * *

Johnny Mack, the Yale track coach and football trainer, is the deciding factor on questions of condition. When Johnny believes a man has had enough for one day, out that man comes and another takes his place.

* * *

It is true several of the Elis are on the hospital list, one because of an attack of appendicitis, and another because of the reopening of an old injury, but all are expected to be in shape for the approaching games with Princeton and Harvard, and even when Yale has been under pressure Trainer Mack has refused to take chances with his recuperating stars.

Many have the hunch that the Brown team will force the Elis to a merry pace on Saturday. Coach Robinson has a squad of likely looking material which thus far has failed to display the expected go-er and having been defeated by Syracuse and held to a scoreless tie by Springfield in the past two weeks, they are expecting the Bruins to show their best.

DEFENCE FOR PRINCETON GAME NOW THE WORK OF HARVARD TEAM

From now on Harvard will concentrate on the plays which are to be used for the game with Princeton as well as prepare a defence to stop anything the Tigers have shown to date.

The Centre game will be played Saturday without any special preparation. The Crimson scouts know pretty well the general attack of the Kentuckians, and the team is prepared to meet it without any specialized instruction before hand.

For a while last Fall Centre gave Harvard a pretty bad afternoon in the Stadium, but eventually the Southern offence was solved, and the weaker defence penetrated so that Harvard's margin of victory was wide enough.

* * *

Reports from Danville are to the effect that the Morans are stronger defensively this fall and have held their punches against the weak teams they have encountered thus far. Perhaps they will let loose Saturday, but at Cambridge they are not worrying.

* * *

Yesterday's practice was the usual first day's work. There were nearly a dozen men in civilian clothes who watched it. Among these were Captain Kane, George Owen, Roscoe Flits, Percy Jenkins, Charley Tierney, Eddie Clark and Al Ladd. Tubby Grew is still at his home with a cold. Frank Scollard is at the Infirmary with a cold also, but will be discharged soon.

* * *

After a long blackboard talk, the squad went to the Stadium for fundamental work, a signal drill, and a good lot of kicking.

* * *

The varsity lineup was Macomber and Janin, ends; Kunhardt and Henry, tackles; Brown and Hubbard, guards; Kernan, centre; Buell, quarterback; Churchill, Gratwick and Gberke, backs.

* * *

The work this afternoon will also be of a light nature. Tomorrow a short scrimmage is in order, and for the remainder of the week there will be nothing strenuous.

* * *

Practically every ticket for the Harvard-Centre game is sold. The Harvard Athletic Association has placed a rush order for more admission tickets and these will be sold today at Cambridge two to a customer. In all close to 60,000 seats have been disposed of, making a gate of something like $75,000. Speculators are striving their best to corner a supply at Harvard.

HARVARD PLAYERS HAVE THRILLING TENNIS FIGHT

A thrilling tennis match between Captain Morris Duane of Harvard and Ned Herndon, a member of last year's Princeton team, for the Harvard singles championship was ended by darkness yesterday. The match will be resumed this afternoon.

Herndon captured the first two sets, and had a five to four advantage on the third, which would have captured him the title. Duane, however, staged an exciting rally, winning three straight games and the set.

The men were tied at four all when darkness caused Referee Key to postpone the remainder of the match.

DOYLE AFTER BRITTON FOR TITLE BATTLE AT LOCAL CLUB

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Britton, world's welterweight champion, is said to be gliding merrily down the dear old toboggan. All of which has caused several dozen perfectly husky ring men to burst forth with the glad tidings that they are prepared to take up the title holder's burden.

Paul Doyle, New England welterweight champion, is listed among those who would take Britton's place at the top of the welterweight class.

"Doyle would defeat Britton if these men were to meet right now," declared Tony Falasolo, manager of Doyle. "Britton has had a wonderful ring career. He has been holding back the opposition for years, but he can't hope to keep winning indefinitely. No matter how great a fighter he may be he ultimately reaches that stage in his career where he begins to go back. Some young fellow then comes along and defeats the supposedly unconquerable one.

"Britton has passed the crest of his ring career. He is thirty-eight years old, which is an age at which most fighting men are passe. Of late Britton has not been fighting very frequently and when he has entered a ring his opponent has been of the hand-picked variety.

"Britton has been offered several matches with Paul Doyle, but turned them down. Why? Doyle is too young and strong for the champion. He is also fast and clever and can punch. I don't blame Britton for dodging sure defeat.

* * *

"Doyle has won his last two Boston starts, defeating K. O. Loughlin and Nate Siegel. He will continue his run of victories when he battles Walter Mohr in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Arena A. C. tomorrow night."

* * *

There will also be two other ten-round matches. Joe Tipilts will oppose George Brown, while Harry (Kid) Brown will battle Young Gradwell. The fighting card and should play to a large crowd.

* * *

Henry Meyers called at this office and expressed himself as follows:

"Freddy Madden would like to battle Frankie Conway again provided one of the many managers of the Philadelphia boy will affix his John Hancock to the articles of agreement.

"Madden has already engaged in a couple of torrid tussles with Conway. In the last engagement, Madden grabbed the decision. Conway was of the opinion he was entitled to the award. Madden will agree to another bout, which will give the boys a chance to settle their dispute."

* * *

Tommy Flynn also paid us a visit and declared that Louis Paddy is at Diamond Hill, training. The Riverside welterweight is in splendid physical condition and is prepared to take on any opposition. One of our local clubs is planning a bout between Flynn and Silva. Such a match would prove interesting.

* * *

Wolf Larsen will try once more to convince the world he is a regular fighter, when he battles Gene Tunney in New York tonight. Both of these men are of the lemon variety of heavyweights, but that's not here nor there, as any of our mayoralty candidates would say.

* * *

Terry McCue has been matched to meet Chick Suggs, New England featherweight champion, in a ten-round bout at Fall River Friday night. McCue recently bested Johnny Clinton, while he also won over Al Walker. As for Suggs, he has been boxing well since he won the New England title from K. O. Charley Dilkins.

* * *

Leo Publicity Bryan has been circulating a story to the effect that Young Michaels won the New England featherweight title from Suggs. The cold records show that Suggs has not fought Michaels since winning the championship. When these boys battled in Fall River, Suggs won on a foul. Leo apparently believes he discovered wisdom and has managed to keep mosquito out of this useful thing. May the awakening not be too cruel.

WEST ROXBURY AND HYDE PARK CLASH TODAY ON GRIDIRON

By FRED C. LANE.

At Braves Field today a game is scheduled between two of Boston's best district scholastic elevens. Hyde Park and West Roxbury. The winner will have strong claim to the district championship.

West Roxbury has for the first time in many years played a prominent part on the gridiron. The same can be said of Hyde Park which this year surprised those interested in interscholastic football.

Coach Leo Dailey, who has been handling the destinies of Hyde Park this season, is credited with the change, while Coach Duffey has brought about wonders in rebuilding the West Roxbury School.

As the teams are on even terms it will be a battle of wits on the part of these two able football mentors. John Lane is a running back of the West Roxbury organization who will give Hyde Park plenty of trouble. The trick plays of the West Roxbury team opposed to the weight of the Hyde Park eleven will develop a clash that is sure to go down in the Boston football annals.

Haverhill High has passed the critical stages of its football schedule. The teams which will be played are not to be compared with the Brodrick clan. The latter has been fortunate in holding off the attack of its opponents who have threatened their goal line for the first time in years. Coach Broderick has some hard work before him to produce a backfield to compare with this year's outfit.

Saugus High, with Coach Beanford again at the helm, has tackled a softer schedule this season than last and is doing a better job.

COLUMBIA VERY SHY OF CREW CANDIDATES

New York, Oct. 25.—Columbia University is facing catastrophe on the water, according to Coach Jim Rice, crew coach, unless more men report for shell duty at once.

"At Yale there are 350 men practicing daily," says Coach Rice. "We have only fifty men out, and half of those are freshmen. There is no reason why the daily attendance at the Columbia practice should not be at least 100."

BOSTON UNIVERSITY RIFLE TEAM STARTS

Seventy-five men are expected to be out for the first practice of the Boston University Rifle Team on Thursday, October 27, at the Irvington street armory. Eight of the ten men who made the highest scores on last year's team have reported this year.

The Boston University Rifle Team has twelve matches on the schedule, including one from the University of Vermont Team and a match is being arranged.

THEOPOLD CAPTAIN OF HARVARD FRESHMAN TEAM

Phillip H. Theopold of Faribault, Minn., was elected Harvard freshman football captain. He is rather light for a guard position, weighing only 170 pounds and being six feet, two inches tall. Theopold prepared for Harvard at St. Mark's.

DARTMOUTH WILL USE HURD AND NEIDLINGER

Both Will Be Ready for Full Time Service Against Cornell Saturday

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 25.—Dartmouth's outlook for the Cornell battle Saturday assumed a brighter aspect yesterday with Trainer Watson's report that Hurd and Neidlinger will be fit for this week end's tilt. These men, both veteran forwards, were kept on the sidelines in the Columbia clash until their services were needed to stem an advance of the New Yorkers. However, against the Ithacans Coach Cannell can use these regulars full time.

Watson also announced that Captain Robertson may be available if it seemed necessary to use him. The Green leader's nose has healed rapidly since an operation last week and his rapid recovery may allow him to play part time, although it is certain that he will not start the game.

The drive for the Cornell fray got under way with one of the longest workouts of the year. After a backboard talk Coach Cannell sent the first and second teams through signal drill until darkness called a halt to the proceedings.

The Green mentor has but a scant three days to prepare for Cornell in the battle to be one of the hardest of the season. Cannell intends to take no chances on injuries this week and will refrain from dealing out any scrimmage sessions.

Dartmouth went through an entirely new series of plays. The plays have been developed for us, solely against the Big Blade of White, and include a further advance in the forward passing department than the attack displayed against Columbia on Saturday.

Dartmouth completed eight passes against the Morningside outfit, and a greater use of the overhead game is finding favor with the Dartmouth board of strategy.

ONLY BLACKBOARD DRILL FOR army FOOTBALL MEN

West Point, Oct. 25.—There was nothing but a blackboard talk for the Army football men. Except for the injury to Wilhide, quarterback, the men came out of the Yale game in good physical shape. Wilhide will be laid up for a brief spell, but the coaches expect him to return to the field this week.

CAVANAUGH HAS TASK TO MAKE SELECTIONS

Boston College Coach Cannot Use Regular Players on Injured List

The Boston College eleven that played against Detroit Saturday did not appear in uniform yesterday, and there will be little scrimmage practice for the regulars this week.

The task that confronts Coach Cavanaugh is the selection of men to replace the regulars whose injuries will keep them out of the game next Saturday, and to weld them with the few remaining regulars into a strong team.

To repair the B. C. line will be the more difficult job. It is almost certain that neither Paton nor Keahane, the regular tackle, will be in condition to play Saturday. Their loss is a serious one as Cavanaugh has not the material at his disposal to readily replace them.

Paton will probably be replaced by Allen Smullen. Smullen has substituted for Paton several times, and only lacks experience to make him a first-class lineman. He is heavy and well built, with plenty of fight in him.

Jack Lyons is the likely substitute for Keahane. Keahane's side was painfully torn on Saturday, and he has not a chance to play against Fordham. Lyons does not compare with the giant left tackle in size or strength, but he is capable of filling the breach.

Lyons is a first-class punter, in fact, the best, now that Chuck Darling is out. Cavanaugh needs a punter badly, and Lyons looks like the man that can fill the bill.

Coach Cavanaugh has made but one radical change in the lineup thus far. Kosiowski, whom Cavanaugh shifted from tackle to right end early in the season, has been replaced by Collins. Kosiowski will probably be shifted to his old position, while Collins will have to learn the end job, as his regular berth is at tackle.

There are very few ends that come up to Cavanaugh's requirements among the subs. The wing positions have been, and are likely to continue, weak. Comerford plays his end satisfactorily. The trouble lies with the lack of good replacement material.

Cavanaugh is more fortunate with his backfield. Mathews proved a good substitute for Darling, and now with Mathews out, the coach has a good man to fill the post in Carmolli.

For the left halfback position which Liston will probably be unable to play Saturday, O'Brien and Corcoran are capable men. O'Brien is light and fast, and a good line plunger. He made the Texas trip, and has played in three games, and is familiar with the workings of the backfield.

The regular team spent yesterday afternoon in hearing Cavanaugh criticise the playing of Saturday. It was not a censure of the team for losing, but an instructive talk on the method of offsetting plays similar to those used by Detroit.

The second team had a light workout under Assistant Coach Joy. Today, the second team will do a little hard work, and perhaps scrimmage a little while the regulars get rested.

Cavanaugh will not take any chances with the men who were injured on Saturday, and will not play them unless they are fully recovered. A statement to this effect will probably mean that the second team will have a good chance to play Saturday against Fordham.

WESLEYAN GETS READY FOR GAME WITH TUFTS

Middletown, Ct., Oct. 25.—The Wesleyan team came through the New York University game Saturday with barely a scratch and all the regulars will be ready for the Tufts lineup this week, with the exception of Al Fricke, whose leg is improving but who may not be able to play. Coach Martin is giving attention to Scroggins' punting. He averaged forty yards in the New York game but this was not satisfactory.

Says Some Cooks Refer to Themselves as Interior Decorators

There are two kinds of china decorators. One is a painter and the other is a cook.

For seventy-five cents a china decorator will emboss the face of Lincoln on a dinner plate, but it costs real money to have a chef engrave a beefsteak on one.

"Put it on the plate," says the artist. "Put it under the plate," says the waiter.

A china decorator will put fifty cents' worth of gold on a plate and charge you three dollars for it, but some restaurants put fifty cents' worth of food on one and charge you five bucks for it.

A lot of rich people like to have their salad plates decorated with gold and use fifty-dollar bills for doilies.

A poor man can use fifty-dollar bills, too, but they won't be received.

One chef never admitted that he was a cook. He referred to himself as an interior decorator.

In society everything must be hand painted, even black eyes.

A person will pay eighteen dollars for a beautiful cream pitcher and then can't afford to buy cream to put in it.

Some people don't know anything about china. One bird wrote to the Navy Department for a couple of gravy boats.

He thought chafing dishes were ones that rubbed together in the dishpan.

Anybody can own a lot of vacant dishes, but it takes a smart person to keep them occupied.

Syracuse, Oct. 25.—Cornell began its grind for the Dartmouth and Columbia games. The team is in fine physical condition, Cassidy, left end being the only man to suffer bruises in the Colgate game. He will be in shape to play in a few days.

No scrimmage was ordered this afternoon. Coach Dobie expressed satisfaction over the team's play in the Colgate game, but said fumbling and occasional ragged playing pointed to the need of a lot of improvement.

JONES THE MIRACLE MAN OF COLLEGE FOOTBALL

New York, Oct. 25.—Keep an eye on Tad Jones, the new miracle man of football.

Here's a tip that is going the rounds today among football fans in general and those who follow the fortunes of the Big Three in particular.

Yale has unbounded faith in Jones. That faith is so firmly rooted that Jones has been given full sway. Because of this his chances of success are brighter than those of any Yale coach of the last few years have been.

The Yale mentor had no real chance to show his real ability last year, yet he did it in the Harvard game despite circumstances. This year he got his first chance, and his accomplishments have proven a sweet dish for Yale.

The Bulldogs have played five games to date, piling up a total of 118 points. They have proven themselves a better scoring machine than Harvard with 79 points in six games, and Princeton with 40 points in four games, and they have yet to reach top form.

Jones is building his team up slowly for the Princeton and Harvard games on November 12 and 19 respectively. Against Army, the Blue showed evidence of latent strength, which, when developed will lend the team much driving power. Serious injuries to players, then appear to be the only possible stumbling blocks to Yale's goal to be top form for Jones will surely bring out the best in his team, if given the opportunity.

A notable feature about the Yale squad and the Jones system lies in the fact that most of the players are men who will be available for football two and three years to come.

Out of thirty-four players listed on the Yale squad fifteen are members of the class of 1924; thirteen belong to the 1923 class, and five to the class of 1922.

This means that Jones is building for the future and Yale adherents are satisfied that the Blue will be lifted out of the football rut at last. Such players as O'Hearn, Hidden, Neidlinger, Mallory, Blair, Diller, Murphy, Deaver, Landis and Beckett, all but the latter 1924 men, seem destined to take prominent part in Yale's comeback.

Next Saturday the Blue will have another game which is calculated to help prime Jones' men for their big battles. Yale meets Brown, an old and time-honored opponent, at New Haven.

YALE BASKETBALL TEAM PLANS TO INVADE WEST

Arthur Stringer's Studio Romance: THE WINE OF LIFE Illustrated by James Montgomery Flagg

The Story of an Ambitious Young Sculptor Who Comes to New York Hoping to Win His Way to Fortune in the Metropolis

THE ACTION SO FAR

Owen Storrow, a young sculptor, coming to New York to perfect himself in his art, meets Torrie Throssel, a strikingly lovely girl studying for the stage under the direction of Herman Krassler, a producer. Storrow saves his cousin, Charlotte Kirkner, from drowning, and she confesses her love for him. Later he marries Torrie, and on the advice of Chester Hardy gives up sculpture and starts to write a novel of the North Country. Torrie, very angry when Storrow divulges their marriage, quarrels with her husband, then repents and contritely tells him she has given up her stage work and that he is the only thing that counts. But Storrow grows more and more suspicious of Torrie's past and she more and more restless. He finally bursts out and they have a cave-man fight in their apartments. He then leaves her and goes to work for an Italian statue maker. Then he hears news that sends him back to Torrie. They go to Pine-Brae, Storrow's Ontario farm.

THE open air and the somewhat heady bottled ale which her husband had laid in for her, on a compact to abstain from more ardent spirits during her period of convalescence, had left her singularly drowsy and contented in spirit. She turned lazily about to rescue her sloper from Skookum, the collie pup which Owen after much travel and trouble had obtained from a neighboring farm, on the stipulation that she must have a dog. But Skookum's companionship had proved not entirely without its drawbacks, since with the voracity of youth this pup indiscriminately chewed up hats and papers and shoes, and frayed the ends of a new striped awning, and started runs in Torrie's silk stockings by affectionately biting at her ankles after clamorous and exciting rackings about the pine grove in which Skookum invariably proved the more easily four legs could outrun two.

Stared Over Lake

Torrie, after another glance at her motionless husband, turned and stared out over the misty blue of the lake, along which drifted an opal sail or two. High over her she could see cliff-swallows darting and circling. Faintly, from the beach below, came the sound of water. The air was filled with the quiet droning of bees, engaged in their repetitious visits to overweighted dandelion-heads. Back in the dark green boughs of the pines, which murmured unceasingly in the soft breeze, a wood pigeon repeated its monotonous complaint.

"Kill-a-coon! Kill-a-coon!" Torrie lazily repeated the monkery of the bird as she commandeered the lower half of her husband's Navajo rug and after dusting his nose with a head of Queen Anne's lace Skookum closer in against the hollow of her relaxed body. Once or twice she stroked the furry pup with her sunburned hand. Then sun and air and tranquilizing noonday noises seemed to combine and surround her like an anaesthetic. She sighed profoundly, reached up for Storrow's worn felt hat, covered her face with it and fell asleep.

Storrow, with the hot sun directly in his eyes, stirred and sat up. He looked at his watch, remembering there was still much to be done that day. Then he looked at the warm red brick of the house mottled with cooler patches of shadow, and decided that before another year a new roof would be necessary and that the threateningly ruinous east abandoned farm. But it was work

Lots of Work

He was finding, in fact, an almost bewildering amount of work in the rehabilitation of that long-abandoned farm. But it was work in which he lost himself with a quite uncomplaining and contented spirit. Since his early boyhood dwelled his mind and kept him from thinking of the past. He felt, in a way, that it was a process of rehabilitation. But it brought him peace, and peace, after all, was a great and wonderful thing in life.

He turned and looked down at Torrie. The felt hat had slipped a little to one side, leaving her face exposed. He was amazed by the changes which he could see there. She had filled out and gained in weight. Open air life, in fact, had brought about some mysterious process of rejuvenation with her.

The once-pulpy white skin had taken on a deeper coloring. The passive and sleeping face, he could see, was unmistakably sunburned, with a small cinnamon freckle spots across the narrow bridge of the nose. She looked half-gypsy, almost peasant-like to him, until from beneath her tumbled duck skirt he caught sight of the finest of silk undershirts which she still insisted in wearing, and the sheer silk stockings against which Skookum rested a quietly sleeping nose. She was not, he remembered, a child of the soil. She still looked upon this, her first taste of life in the country, as a sort of continuous picnic where hardships were an adventure to be laughed at, where recurring wonder at utterly new conditions tended to make up for an environment that was far from eventful.

Everything New

He smiled as he remembered her futile little efforts at gardening, her plots of transplanted and patted down wild flowers, carefully marked with sticks, seemingly more the product of a child's hand than a woman's, lamented audibly over the drooping and broken-rooted ferns, which she had quite forgotten to water, just as she railed against the injustice of nature in allowing flies to cluster about and torment the body of their newly purchased Jersey cow, which she had promptly christened "Aprilla," after a one-time Casino stage associate.

For a day or two she had even laboriously and patiently fanned these flies away from the tawny flanks of "Aprilla," with branches of elderberry which she broke from the fence line. And invariably, when evening came, she heralded milking time by inquiring if she could help "page" "Aprilla," though it took her fully a week to overcome her distaste for milk so distubingly associated with its literlo process of production.

She stormed at the robins for encroaching on her neglected and nose ¢oo productive patch of strawberries, for never before had she picked that fruit from the vine, and she usually came from the patch with her mouth stained scarlet, like a greedy child's. So keen was her delight in gathering eggs and in watching the hens, that Storrow had more than once secretly augmented the contents of a nest, for the mere sake of overhearing her lyrical shout of triumph as she dropped to her knees and excitedly computed the extent of her harvest. But she looked on a clover field as something marvelous to caress across with her hair flying and the carefully mounded cocks of fresh-cut hay as merely something odorous and inviting to tumble about and bury oneself in.

What surprised Storrow, however, was the completeness of Torrie's contentment. There had already grown up between them a tacit agreement to make no mention of that past on which they had so completely turned their backs. If she thought of that past at all, she did so in secret. Yet Storrow knew that she was not entering into the life of Pine-Brae as he had entered into it. She was merely catching from it the momentary pagan. She could munch inordinate quantities of green apples, and call sections of a the sight of a wild rabbit, and coo with admiration at her first glimpse of a cat-bird's nest filled with its four small eggs of heavenly blue, or wade bare-footed with her skirts held high above her golden knees, along the shallow beach of rippled sand. But she understood little what Storrow meant when he complained that he had come to Pine-Brae too late to take the farm in hand for that season.

And on this, when he sat with his pipe, slightly heavy-eyed with physical weariness, poring over plans and compiling ever-growing lists of their household needs, she would wheedle old Abe into romancing about the days of the Fenian raid and the more antiquated and accordingly more highly-colored adventures of The Underground, whereby the Southern slaves of the old days had once escaped into Canada.

Then Abe, ceremoniously donning his white gloves, would bring cheese and crackers and the bottled ale from the cellar, and Torrie, drawing on her sandy brew, would take Storrow's pipe away from him and ask: "Isn't it bedtime, Honey?"

She liked to sleep late, though on one pellucid morning of opal and pearl and pale rose she had got up with him a little after four in the morning, to see the sunrise.

But when he thought of the future it was always with one ever-disturbing and ever-unanswered question recurring to him; the question of how long that fragile card-house of contentment might last.

Quiet Days

The quietly flowing days ran into weeks, and the weeks widened into months, and the green faded a little in lost and lawn, and Summer grew old. Storrow, still deep in his work of reconstruction, watched the shortening of the days, watched them with that indeterminate regret which attaches to the passing of all earthly beauty. He watched them, too, with a small and only growing anxiety. Torrie could still be heard singing now and then as she worked or lolled about in the open sunlight. She still raced with Skookum, and talked interminably with the crusty old Abe, and remained discreetly silent on everything but the present.

But a change was taking place. A dormant restlessness of spirit which still manifested itself only in oblique and accidental ways seemed to be creeping over her. This restlessness, the guardedly watchful Storrow was able to perceive, invariably became more marked just after their evening meal.

That, he remembered, was the theatre hour, the hour which in her old life had imposed exceptional movement and activity on his wife. One day when the wind was out of the north and the sky-line of the lake was a dark green, Storrow thought he detected a small shiver sweep through her relaxed body. He looked up and asked her if she was cold.

"No," she said in a disturbingly flat and lifeless voice. "I was only wondering what this place is going to be like by Winter. And Uncle Abe tells me your Canadian Winters last a good half of the year."

Torrie was a bad handy brew, and Storrow's pipe away from him and ask: "Isn't it bedtime, Honey?"

She liked to sleep late, though on one pellucid morning of opal and pearl and pale rose she had got up and campaigned to hold together what was left of existence, feeling that this campaign was one of self-preservation for both of them.

"What are you thinking about?" demanded Torrie, coming to a stop in front of him.

"I was thinking how you'd enjoy that two-mile walk to the postoffice for the mail," he evaded, "now that the weather's cooler."

She caught at that suggestion much more eagerly than he had expected, donning tam and sweater and tan boots and catching up the antiquated riding crop of Amasa Kirkner as she called gaily for Skookum. And as she disappeared in a flurry of skirts and laughter, the cloud which had so quickly gathered seemed to have lost an rapidly disappeared from the horizon.

Torrie, in fact, had lately formed the habit of walking daily to the postoffice for the mail. She needed that four-mile tramp, she explained to Storrow, to harden up. She had "been letting herself go," as she expressed it, until it was a struggle even to get her corsets on in the morning. And if she grew dumpy and humpy her husband wouldn't love her any longer. And ladies had to have their husbands love them, even if they were a thousand miles from civilization.

It was a week later that Torrie returned from her daily tramp with the light of a new interest in her eyes. Storrow, disturbed by it, loked his time in silence.

"Owen, what would you say if I told you I was going to visit Detroit for a day or two?" she asked that day at luncheon.

"It's something which your neighbors very frequently do," he announced with a laugh of relief.

"I never knew I had any neighbors," she amended

"What's because you've never shown any interest in them," he pointed out to her. And she shrugged a diffident shoulder.

"Well, I'm in touch with her," she went on, "completely in rags. I've simply got to stock up with some new duds. And Hattie Crandley's going to be in Detroit next week with the Gold Wing Girls, so I should say I'd be a good chance to kill Mattie and the storekeepers with the same stone."

A Stirring Narrative of the Influence of Love on the Lives of a Girl and a Man of the Type That Fills a Big Niche in an Ever Changing Age

HER OWN WAY

STORY OF A YOUNG GIRL'S STRUGGLES

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

HELEN began an explanation.

"I only thought that if we were seen in here alone together—"

But he interrupted her.

"That it would make talk, eh? I don't give a damn if it does'

"I beg your pardon!" at her reproving frown. "I know I should not have spoken like that. But it is bad enough to be poor, and worried, without feeling that one can not see one's own cousin alone for three minutes without starting some infernal scandal-monger's fool tongue to wagging".

There was a foot-fall in the hall Mrs. Ovington paused in the doorway and looked into the room

"Excuse me" she murmured, then passed on upstairs.

"I must not stay here" Helen said hastily. "But I wanted to tell you that I have had a letter from Uncle Dan"

"Oh," the exclamation seemed to escape the listener against his will.

"Yes," she went on. "He sent me some money. I need only a part of it just now. I want you to take a hundred dollars as a loan from me—to send out to—to the woman you love."

"Helen!" he whispered, breathlessly. "Helen—my dear—do you mean it?"

"Of course I do!" she insisted. "Here," thrusting the bill into his hand. "We have no time to talk the matter over now. I will explain it all when we are walking tomorrow afternoon. Only—one thing more, now. Uncle Dan is to be here in a few days. I shall see him then. I wish that you would, too."

The man's face had turned very white.

"Coming here!" he said, hoarsely. "To New York! And you are going to see him?"

"Yes," she nodded. "And you must see him, too. It is only fair to him—and to yourself"

Helen waited for a moment for her cousin to reply to her suggestion

"Think about it!" she insisted. "I know you have an idea that you ought to keep Uncle Dan from knowing the truth about your friend. But you need not tell him the name of the man whose honor you have tried to save."

"You remember, you thought of making a clean breast of things to Uncle Dan when he was here in the Fall. That you always failed"

"Yes," he admitted in a low voice. "My courage failed."

"I do not wonder," the girl commented "But now—he writes that he has learned certain things about his nephew—and about one that have changed his ideas about some matters."

Young Sloane drew in his breath sharply. He seemed to shake off the sense of bewilderment that had seized him.

"You is he coming to New York?" he asked

"He is going to stop here on his way to Europe. Perhaps to break his journey—perhaps to see me. I do not know"

"When?"

"I don't know that either. Soon, I believe. But we can discuss all this tomorrow. I must not stay here talking any more now."

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Grey Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.—Advertisement.

FOR EVENING WEAR

By Rita Stuyvesant

THE newest evening wraps breathe the Spanish influence and present themselves in the form of a shawl: a gorgeous affair heavily fringed and splashed by gay color. One loses a little about her shoulders with all the coquetry of the Spanish senorita and flirtatiously winds herself into its beauty

Elegance is portrayed in another wrap of Parisienne inspiration in sapphire chiffon velvet and mink, delicately draped below a broad band of gold and blue embroidery at the hips, and deeply collared. One wonders just how the armholes are achieved, with their great loops of material suspended from them. A lining of porcelain blue silk reveals itself when the wrap is removed

The younger set will welcome a delightfully dainty wrap of peach duvetyn that assumes the lines of a cape. This is collared in ermine and shows a lining of pale orchid crepe

There are so many flimsy excuses for evening wraps that one is apt to forget the practical. Of the multra beauty One model is of georgette crepe in an American beauty shade. It is a full cape, gathered at the neck into a narrow ribbon boa and bordered knee-deep with the gros-grain ribbon frilled through the middle. This lovely cloak is also shown in black, white and almost every desirable shade, preferably to match the frock.

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1921, by The Wheeler Syndicate Inc

LOVE is that emotion which is situated somewhere in a man's soul, between his golf-mania and his religion.

Flattery makes a woman vain; but, apparently, the averse man doesn't have to have anything to make him that way.

The most tragic day of a woman's life is not the day on which she is forty, nor even the day on which she looks forty—but the day on which she ADMITS that she's forty.

A man often talks just as sentimentally and acts just as ardent after marriage as he did before marriage—but not when his wife is around.

The old-fashioned girl tried to tie a man to her with her kitchen apron strings and to hold him with her chafing dish; but the modern girl optimistically expects to grapple him to her with a corkscrew and a canopener.

Flirtation is merely turning on the electric light of sentiment and basking in its radiance, until you happen to touch the live wire of love.

When a man fixes the damage to his heart at $50,000 in an alienation suit, he is simply professing. No man's heart was ever broken or even chipped more than two cents' worth in any love battle.

Taking your troubles "like a man" appears to be blaming them on your mother-in-law.

When a man falls in love through his senses, he is apt to fall out with a sudden crash, and land on his feet; but when he falls in love through his imagination, he falls out with a series of dull sickening jolts and lands on his vanity.

A Bachelor of Arts is one who makes love to a lot of women—and yet has the art to remain a bachelor.

Quite Ready.

Fond mamma: "Yes, my darling, those little boys next door have no father or mother, and no kind Aunt Sophia. Wouldn't you like to give them something?" Arona, with great enthusiasm: "Oh, yes, mamma! Let's give them Aunt Sophia!"

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in One or two teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it one an silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

TO CHECK A COLD

—By Brice Belden, M. D.

THE ordinary cold in the head is apt to be neglected; time is expected to act as the healer. While it is true that many colds clear up of themselves, it is also a fact that a cold is often the first stage of a serious affection of the respiratory tract or of some general infection.

When one contracts a cold and feels creepy, chilly and hot by turns he should have his temperature taken. If it is above normal he should go to bed

A person affected with a cold should sleep in a room by himself, or at least in a separate bed. He should, if he remains up and about, avoid places where there is overcrowding or poor ventilation.

Every person suffering from a cold must protect others against infection by depositing all nasal and mouth secretions discharged through coughing or sneezing in pieces of cloth or paper, which must be burned after use.

It is for the protection of all the people that expectoration is prohibited in public places and conveyances and on the sidewalks, since there is no question whatever that colds, pneumonia and various other infections owe their spread to this dangerous habit.

The disease spread by careless spitting are tuberculosis, pneumonia, influenza, diphtheria, tonsilitis, infectious colds and bronchitis.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Changing Her Mind.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

Some months ago I was introduced to a girl whom I have learned to admire very much. During our early friendship she seemed to enjoy my company. Of late, however, I find that she is trying hard to avoid me.

WORRIED.

BE a man and ask the girl frankly if she has tired of your friendship. If she has any admirable qualities at all, she can't fail to admire you for your honesty.

The Disappearing Friend

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I have been going about with a young man all Summer, who has professed that he cared for me, coming around two and three nights a week, up to the last couple of weeks

Now I have not heard from him since the Sunday before last. I have every reason to believe he really cares for me, so do you think it would be improper for me to phone him.

IN DOUBT.

NO real man is so unstable, that he changes like the wind. The man may be sick or busy. If he were a girl friend would you hesitate to inquire what was keeping her away? Don't complain, don't whine, and don't act as if you thought you were doing something to be apologized for. Just call up the young man and tell him you miss your friend and wonder if he's so busy he can't stop to think of you, or say something equally friendly and casual.

Money vs. Love

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Should a man marry for the love of money or just love of a good and deserving girl?

This is the third time I have broken my engagement due to the fact that I am a self-supporting girl and my savings do not run up into the thousands.

MARRIAGE is a partnership. A man has a right to expect the woman to bring something to it—understanding, sympathy and helpfulness. And there is no reason why a woman shouldn't contribute to the earnings of the household if she has the capacity. Any girl, before last, I who wants to marry a bank account instead of a woman, can't find room in this column.

CLEAR YOUR COMPLEXION

Do you frown when your mirror so glaringly reflects some facial skin blemish, and then quick and easy way of clearing your skin?

There's a skin beautifier—a delightfully fragrant, tinted cold cream, known as Black and White Beauty Bleach. When used in connection with Black and White Soap and Cleansing Cream, the results are surprising.

Black and White Beauty Bleach clears the complexion of pimples, blackheads, freckles, spots, and otherwise makes the skin soft and smooth. Black and White Soap is an aid to Beauty Bleach—and a skin beautifier, in addition. Black and White Cleansing Cream—removes all dirt and impurities from the pores—makes the skin soft and velvety.

Black and White Beauty Bleach, 50c; Soap, 25c, and Cleansing Cream, 25c and 50c, are sold and guaranteed by all good drug and department stores.

Write Dept. D, Plough, Memphis, Tenn., for a copy of your Birthday Book and a booklet which tells all about Black and White Toilet Preparations.

WOMAN AVOIDS AN OPERATION

Hope Nearly Gone, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her

Star, N. C.—"My monthly spells gave me so much trouble, sometimes last a week and I would have two weeks. I was treated by two doctors without relief and they both said I would have to have an operation. I had my trouble four years and was fully discouraged getting any better. I read about your medicine in the 'Primitive Baptist' paper and decided to try it. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for about seven months and now I am able to do my work. I shall never forget your medicine and you may publish this if you want to as it is true."—Mrs. J. F. HURSEY, Star, N.C.

Here is another woman who adds her testimony to the many whose letters we have already published, proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound often restores health to suffering women even after they have gone so far that an operation is deemed advisable. Therefore it will surely pay any woman who suffers from such ailments to try it.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

What's yours? Haven't you noticed how almost everybody has a cure-all for what's the matter with things in general? Everyone is sure, cocksure, that the adoption of his pet idea would bring prosperity and happiness to all.

• • •

First, let us consider what some of these cure-alls are. Socialism is still the panacea urged by many enthusiasts, notwithstanding all that has occurred in Russia and in other places where experiments have been made in putting socialistic theories into actual practice. At present the trend appears to be away from rather than towards socialism.

• • •

Many earnest-minded people were confident that the introduction of prohibition would do more than anything else and everything else to abolish crime and vice and misery and poverty and all manner of evil. Well, no matter how much prohibition may accomplish when it is strictly enforced and when a generation rises up that knows nothing else, prohibition thus far has not transformed the United States into Utopia.

Whenever any industrial, transportation or economic problem arrives there are many cure-alls offered as a sure and certain solution, "government ownership" Other countries have come to the astonishing for government ownership, however, have discovered that it has drawbacks as well as advantages, and that this is not the panacea desired for economic, social and labor ills.

• • •

At the moment many are talking as if the only thing that can possibly save the world from rushing towards the complete wrecking of our civilization is disarmament. Even where drastic curtailment of armament-building is agreed upon and carried into effect, mankind would still find itself confronted with at least a few obstacles to stability, prosperity and happiness.

Need we say more than to remind you that many individuals have got it into their heads that the burdens of the rank and file of the people would fall off them almost if "money" were totally abolished. Letters advocating this constantly come to me. Others are to the opposite extreme, claiming that as the main trouble of most people is lack of money, our government could and should raise by law lavish amounts of money to give everybody a plentiful supply. Several European countries have tried the latter plan—notably Germany, Austria-Hungary, Poland Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Jugoslavia. But, somehow, it hasn't worked.

Then there are those in every country who contend that the chief source of international discord and of disturbed trade and employment has been the almost universal practice of issuing "protective tariffs." They picture a glorious, happy and abundant state of affairs if free trade were adopted all around the world.

In our own country at this moment many, including business men, proclaim that the key to prosperity upon the revival of active business and full-flood employment here is uncertainty over what Congress will do in the matter of fixing tariff barriers.

To the question, "What is the most depressing and crippling influence today?" not a few would instantly reply, "taxes." Taxes admittedly are throttling business in various countries, and the impossibility of gauging what may be done by our government taxwise is unquestionably retarding the recovery of prosperity

Were some fairy to wave a magical wand and abolish all taxes the world would doubtless still find a few things to worry about.

• • •

Lately scientists and others having unbridled imaginations have been conjuring up a blissful day when the releasing of atomic energy of the energy inherent in the atom will supply this old world with all the needful power imaginable and relieve everyone from the necessity of earning a living by the sweat of the brow. It is easy and no fascinating to picture future states of universal bliss, and no one can bring forward disproof. Meanwhile, however, the atom's energy is as untamed as lightning.

• • •

Blue Sunday laws, universal education, Christian Science psychoanalysis, the rooting out of disease, the six-hour day, "profit-sharing, scientific (eugenic) human mating, birth control, the creation of Esperantism, universal thrift, the transmutation of metals, industrial democracy—each of these is advocated in season and out of season by zealots who attach infinite importance to their pet idea as being the greatest panacea for the woes of the world.

• • •

What's your particular obsession? If you were to ask me what I would name as the most effective panacea, to be expressed in one word, I think I would reply, either "Godliness" or "righteousness."

Is not the moral of what is here set down, however, there are so many different minds in the world and so many different ideas, that it does not behoove any of us to get it into our head that our own special ideas is the only one worth adopting that there is room for opinions which do not agree with our own, that it behooves each of us to be broad-minded and tolerant rather than narrow-minded and bigoted. Let us think for ourselves, yes. But let others also think for themselves.

UNITED DRUG IS A NEW YORK FEATURE

Soars Seven Points in the Second Hour; Rails Are Irregular; Oils Up

By W. H. ROSS
Financial Editor

Stocks were strong in New York as a rule, although rails were irregular and steels and tobaccos no more than steady. Gains were held during the morning by most issues and increased by specialties in the second hour. United Drug was a feature. It advanced more than seven points on American Sugar also showed most three. Among other particularly strong issues were Baldwin, Studebaker, Pierce-Arrow preferred, Mexican Petroleum, Pressed Steel Car and Industrial Alcohol. They went up from two to three points. Point or more advances were common. Houston Oil started in this manner again, but by noon was off more than a point. The market was active, morning transactions approximating 250,000 shares.

The opening call rate was 5½ per cent. Foreign exchange was strong. Cable demand sterling attaining the highest figure it has reached in six months. It opened at $3.95¾, up 2 cents. Cotton advanced approximately $3.75 a bale on the cotton exchange, owing to the Census Bureau ginning report.

BEGAN WITH AN ADVANCE.

Strength and activity distinguished the opening with Mexican Petroleum the outstanding feature. It began with gains of from 2¾ to 4¼ on transactions totalling 5000 shares. The run-in of shorts continued and it was soon up 6 points. This stock was a scarce yesterday for borrowing purposes and at the close of the loan market commanded a premium of 1 per cent. The borrowing demand for other issues was light. Motors were higher this morning but little more is in evidence than they have been of late. Steels remained quiet pending the report of the U. S. Steel Corporation as to third quarter earnings. Reams are expecting an unfavorable coming. Rails, likewise, were dealt in on a small scale and were irregular also. Oils in general were quiet and the only domestic issues of this class were soon mixed as to movement. Sugars showed improvement on a few transactions. Aside from Utah, coppers sought a higher level. Rubbers were in active equipment and was up a trifle most of the first hour. Tires issues developed strength. The American Co. and American Ice, made a new high for the year and Burns Bros. touched its previous high.

LESS FEAR OF STRIKE.

Although there was less fear of a strike, rails did not respond to the cheerful views of the railroad executives that a labor difficulty will not add to the revenue of railroads. In fact, the latest rate increase will increase them. Buyinf Mexican Petroleum was accelerated this morning by short covering, which ran up the first half of this years. They amounted to 17¾ per cent. on outstanding common stock, against 8¾ per cent. in the corresponding 1920 period. The high call rate is attributed to government withdrawals. But a relaxation in money is expected shortly. The increase cotton ginning report was a contradiction of rumors that the crop is going to be larger than expected. According to the government figures, the yield will be about 6,537,000 bales.

Wall Street Briefs

More than one-third of Standard Oil of Indiana stockholders are employes. They are holders of this class number 7,300 out of a total of 20,000.

Sanuels Refining Co. directors have authorized a dividend of 1½ per cent. on the preferred stock, equivalent to 6 per cent. making 12 per cent. this year. Dividends have been voted unanimously in favor of trading in Boston Stock.

On October 3 General Motors stockholders numbered 41,000, an increase of 1,000 in the course of the month.

Directors of Gorham Co. will not declare a dividend at this time, but will pay 87.50 Nov. 1 on account of accumulations. Earnings for the first months and Ireland 5% per cent. stock are at their rate.

A private brokerage wire reports a rumor that a further reduction of not less than 25 per cent. in the price of gasoline may be announced by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey yesterday or today.

It is rumored on Wall Street the Jesse Livermore made $15,000,000 through short selling of Baldwin Locomotive.

Dominated by Boston Man

"Adams" writes in the Boston News Bureau:

The widely known index who has just resigned from the directorate of the Boston Elevated Railway Co. is doing more to advance the interests and dignity of the United States in Europe than any other American over there. Col. Edward Dean Adams, who is now in Switzerland, is the chief representative of the United States Government in the Reparations Commission.

Col. Adams was appointed through sheer capacity and forceful personality. Borden interests are represented on the commission, but Col. Adams was not the matter no to Borden interests. He is a man of independent means, not interesting billions. Hoover will never be forgotten for his relief work in Europe, aside, and other Americans, notably Walter Hines Page, have done much to advance the interests of the United States. Today Col. Adams is particularly influential in all the allied capitals.

Dividend Declarations

Taylor, Wharton Iron & Steel Co. declared quarterly 1¾ per cent., preferred dividend, payable Nov. 1, to stock of record Oct. 25, and Midwest Oil Co. declared quarterly dividend of 50 cents, payable Nov. 15, to stock of record Oct. 31.

Kaufmann Department Stores Inc. declared quarterly dividend of $1.00 on common, payable Nov. 15, to stock of record Nov. 1.

BIG COMBINE STARTLES CHICAGO

Evans Gives Inside Facts of Deal Between Pullman and Haskell and Barker Co.

By C. B. EVANS

Chicago, Oct. 25.—It is refreshing and beneficial to economize health for a breese such as the deal between the Pullman Co. and the Haskell & Barker Car Co., and sweep it on a community where the financial atmosphere has become stagnant.

We had become stale. There was as much rich, warm bloom in our exteries as there is in a cork leg. Now we are beginning to feel again. This, although the deal has not yet been closed and the financial pot is willing to speak definitely as to the terms.

The outlook is good, however, and this beautiful pair of twins will no doubt soon become one big boy. This operation is very different in many than the country has had in the past few years. Formerly a deal would take over some weak ones or a lot of weak ones would merge, expecting thereby to become strong and often being disappointed.

HOW THEY RATE.

The statistical manuals do not give the latest phases of the condition as either of these companies but facts from authoritative sources make a comparison of their earnings. The estimates of the value of the Haskell & Barker Company range from $14,-000,000 to $15,000,000. More than half of the latter sum being made up of quickly marketable assets, as the number of shares is 220,000, the value per share would be a little over $80. The book value of the Pullman's stock is figured at $216. These current market prices are well below the value as figured by the accountants.

The promoters of this deal appear, however, to have been closing on an important asset who does not wear a price tag on his clothes, that is Edward Barry, president of the Haskell & Barker for some time past, without his knowledge and consent. It is reported that Mr. Carry knew nothing of this deal last Tuesday when it was signed up in a quiet way by a number of our good observers. J. H. Russell, the present president, who has had a successful career in the affairs of the Pullman Company will be the active head. His present place being taken by Mr. Carry.

BUYING IS EXCELLENT.

It is common opinion here that his stocks are worth more than they are selling for. Accordingly the buying of both in this city has been excellent. It is all a fortunate thing for the large number of small stockholders of Pullman, many of whom hold the stock at prices now looking very high.

Even the bargain hunters of the past few months have been seriously hurt. In 1909 the stock sold as high as 270. This does not mean much as fair comparison, however, as the capitalization has been increased since that time. This year we have had a low of 78¾ and that only last Tuesday. Haskell Barker has sold as low as 50½ this year on June 29.

The Haskell & Barker Car Company is a recast of its former self. A few years ago the older men in the concern were losing interest, the operation well, desired to retire, and this according to the knowledge of certain financiers, the property was quietly bought up in New York, and one finds in the list chosen making the purchase the well-known names of Choate, Keech, Vanderzip and Morton.

WINNERS AT LAST.

The Stock was placed by them among their friends and acquaintances at fifty, the profit to the underwriters being several hundred thousand dollars, but subsequent to its issue the price went to 37 1-2 and many of them have been carrying these years at a greatly reduced price. Now all of them the stock wins at last.

As one authority puts it the company made money during the war and has kept it. Which is in strong contrast with many others that might be mentioned and which are creeping around on the low levels. The recent performances of both of these companies suggest that this is a time in which the man selling stocks short is likely to get some pretty hard knocks.

This city may congratulate itself on the deal when it is finally consumated. For it makes the concern more than ever a Chicago interest. The words Pullman City, Ind., Indiana, but it is all in the "Chicago district," and the combined corporation will be in the name of Chicago men who enabled travelers to sleep comfortably on their journeys.

While persons engaged in promotion are presumed to buy a stock with the intention of selling it soon, one finds in the list of directors of the Haskell Barker Co., men who participated in the underwriting of five years ago. Indicating that they still stockholders. Doubtless the same will be true this time.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Firmness again characterized the stock market and also the day's operations were on a moderate scale. The session furnished several trading features of interest. Oil shares again occupied the center of the stage and several sharp advances were scored. Pacific Oil again touched a new high level, Houston ran up sharply and General Asphalt sold at the highest point in several weeks. The rails advanced only fractionally, but the equipments were quiet and stronger and leadership of Baldwin and American Locomotive. Haskell and Barker Co., on the other hand was trifle reactionary. Coppers took quite a spurt, with Utah touching and closing at 66, which is the highest price this stock has reached in several months. Cerro De Pasco and Anaconda also advanced.

GENERAL news was of a somewhat conflicting character. The outlook was not much better, but the optimism by this department was offset by the unfavorable construction placed by the Senate action on taxation providing for a maximum surtax of fifty per cent. European cables professed to find much that was encouraging in the Hapsburg coup and the Irish question.

THE six months' earnings statement of the Mexican Petroleum Company, will be made public today and it is understood will show net earnings of approximately $8,000,000. This compares with a total of $9,-000,000 for the whole of last year. Advance knowledge of these figures was responsible for the firmness of the stock during the afternoon.

THERE was little inclination to take a position on either side of the steel stocks in view of the quarter's earnings statement due today by the U. S. Steel Corporation. In usually well informed circles it is believed that the interest charges and the preferred dividend requirements have been earned, but that little if any, profit of the common stock will be shown. This would indicate no. for the quarter of approximately $12,000,000. In the last quarter a balance of about sixty cents per share was shown applicable to common stock dividends.

SEARS ROEBUCK CO. have incorporated a building company in this State which, it is said, will spend $25,000,000 in new buildings mostly in the East. The seeming anomaly of a mail order house engaging in real estate operations is in this case justified by its supporters on the ground that Sears Roebuck carries a large stock of "Prefabricated" houses for which a market may be created through the operations of a real estate company.

Similarly, it is pointed out, a market will be created for the sale of house furnishings by the purchasers of these new homes. It is said that one hundred houses are being erected at White Plains and extensive developments are being planned in the commuting area of this city.

THE confused advance in Houston Oil was a surprise to the trading element, as it was unaccompanied by any new development. Brokers who have been in touch with the stock say the most of the buying was for the account of an uptown group who went short of the stock in the lower sixties.

AT the close of last week a canvass of the street by a large commission house purported to show an outstanding short interest of more than 20,000 shares in Baldwin Locomotive. It is generally estimated that the total supply of Baldwin in the street is under 40,000 shares, and that the disproportionate short interest might well itself to an untenable position. There was no news to account for the advance in the stock Monday, the transactions being assorted, at most, wholly to professional operations.

FOLLOWING the meeting of bankers last Friday afternoon, which was said to have been called to discuss the financial affairs of Cuba Cane Corporation, it was announced Monday that approximately 17,000,000 of debentures have voted approval of the proposed finance plan. It is believed that the larger percentage of these bills will be required before the plan is made operative, although there was an unconfirmed report that an announcement of its becoming effective will be made today.

BUYING of Endicott-Johnson recently has been for the account of interests identified with the company, according to a specialist in that stock. The present market no doubt savings are anticipated in the immediate future, but it is said that the company's business justifies higher prices and the outlook for next year is confidently entertained by the company are optimistic.

THE steamer La Lorraine arrived from French ports with $2,750,-000 in gold consigned to various New York bankers. A small shipment of $19,000 came in from South America and silver valued at $230,000 also arrived from that country.

BOUNDARIES OF CITY TO BE INSPECTED

Councillors Watson, Lane and Brickley Appointed Official "Perambulators"

Councillors Watson, Lane and Brickley were designated the perambulators of the City Council at the regular meeting. "Perambulators" is the name given by law to those members of the council to whose lot falls the duty of inspecting the boundaries of Boston with its neighboring cities and towns.

They must go over the lines and see that none of the neighbors have moved the boundary stones and encroached upon the limits of Boston as a municipality. Most of the walking, however, will be done with the aid of an automobile.

Councillor John A. Donoghue was appointed to draw the grand jurors yesterday and he did it with an impartiality that won the praise of his colleagues. Among those selected by him from the box were the names of himself and George H. McCafferty, jr., secretary of the Good Government Association.

All the petitions for jitney licenses in Hyde Park were granted by the council.

Mayor Peters' proposed ordinance to prevent city employees from the importuning of collectors of political campaign funds was laid upon the table for a week in order that the council may have the opinion of the law department as to whether it conflicts with the corrupt practices act.

The order to give the Mayor $5,000 for spending money when Marshal Foch of France visits Boston the November 14 was passed without comment.

CONGRESS TRIP TO CANADA IS ASSURED

Responses Hearty to Invitation to Be Guests of Hearst Newspapers

By Universal Service.

Washington, Oct. 25.—A trip to Canada by a committee of Congress as guests of the Hearst newspapers for the purpose of studying the operation of the sales tax laws is assured through the interest aroused by the editorial invitation.

Here are samples of responses to the invitation, which show how members of Congress regard the proposed trip and the benefits to be derived from it:

Representative John E. Raker of California writes as follows: "I have read, with a great deal of interest, Mr. Hearst's invitation to the members of Congress to go to Canada by special train as his guests for the purpose of seeing how the sales tax in actual operation affects retail prices and national revenue.

"This is a most laudable undertaking and will give the members of Congress an opportunity to observe at first hand the sales tax in operation and the results. One of our difficulties now is that we do not get enough first-hand knowledge on the subjects on which we must act.

"I want to commend Mr. Hearst for his public spirit thus evidenced in this very important national question. Correct information is what I am seeking on this tax question, therefore book me as one to go."

Representative L. S. Echols of West Virginia sent the acceptance in this form:

"I read the editorial with a great deal of interest and pleasure. It is not necessary for me to go to Canada to confirm my belief that the sales tax is the best system that can be proposed and probably the least burdensome to raise a part of the government revenue. However, if a trip is made to Canada for the purpose of investigating the sales tax system, I shall be very glad to go to obtain some further information on the subject."

Representative John Philip Hill of Maryland sent this response: "I should like indeed to accept this invitation were it not for the uncertainty of certain legislation in which I am particularly interested coming before the House.

"I shall keep the matter before me, and hope to advise definitely within the next week or ten days."

IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING MEMORY of our Dear Mother, Mary M. Austin (nee Flower), who passed away at 3 Lincoln rd., Brookline, Oct. 25th, 1918.

Just one year ago she left us,
How we've missed her loving face;
But we're pleased to have an angel
In God's Kingdom, full of grace.
She suffered much, she murmured not,
But oft we watched her on that day.
Calm at last, she sweetly whispered,
"Dear children, I must leave you."
Sadly missed but lovingly remembered by her children.

Something More Is Needed Than Disarmament

William Jennings Bryan Offers Good Advice to the Coming Conference at Washington

Mr. William Jennings Bryan has given some advice to the coming conference on disarmament. He tells the conferees that there must be something more than disarmament if progress towards peace is to be made. He suggests that one of its concomitants should be a provision which prohibits war until after a preliminary investigation and report on the facts have been made by a disinterested tribunal.

We believe that Mr. Bryan is right so far as he goes and it is especially interesting to note that Mr. Bryan's pacificism, which in the past has approached an obsession, has not blinded him to the fact that there are practical measures which must be taken to make disarmament effective.

A disarmed world can be just as belligerent as an armed world if every nation is equally disarmed. Disarmament does not promote peace, though unequal disarmament does tend to promote war, making the armed nation more belligerent and the unarmed nation more timid, for both timidity and belligerency induce war. A cowardly nation like the cowardly boy in school is always in trouble, while the bullying nation like the bully in school always finds an opportunity to fight.

At the disarmament conference, if the American representatives keep in mind the fact that our resources make our superior capacity to arm a means of dictating terms of peace, we can do a great deal more at this conference to promote the peace of the world than was done at Versailles, with much less pretence.

We must be aware of propaganda at this conference, particularly British propaganda. The thing that will stand in the way of peace is the question of the freedom of the seas. Great Britain does not intend to relinquish her control of the seas, which is even more intolerable than Germany's pretension to dominate the continent of Europe. Germany's pretensions were all on paper and in the minds of her junkers. England actually has control of the seas, and she has greatly strengthened it by her alliance with Japan. But that control is only on the sufferance of the United States, and she knows it. If she is made aware of the fact that we really do not intend that she shall have control of the seas, or that any nation shall have control of the seas, including our own, she will cease to attempt to maintain an impossible position, because she knows that she cannot build a navy against us. When she acknowledges that the seas must be free, she will remove one of the great dangers of war in the future.

A distinguished Frenchman has, within a few days, publicly declared that this pretension to the mastery of the sea is the world's greatest danger, and even suggests an understanding between France and the United States which will offset the British and Japanese alliance.

We do not want any understanding with any nation. We want the friendship of all the nations. We want all nations to count with us, "but none too much." Yet we are glad that France sees the danger of British suzerainty over the ocean—great highways which connect the continents of the world. British statesmen who will foregather at Washington next month should be made to understand that they must relinquish this control.

Amend the Railroad Law

Better Still, Wipe Whole Esch-Cummins Statute, Which Has So Miserably Failed, From the Books

The Governors of the Middle West at a conference passed a resolution calling upon Congress to amend the railroad law which they recently passed, known as the Esch-Cummins law, by striking out the provision which compels the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant the railroads such freight rates as will guarantee these railroads 6 per cent. on their alleged valuations.

This is one of the worst laws which Congress ever passed. It gave the railroads all they dared to ask, and the railroads dare to ask anything. Never before in American history did our government so completely yield to the unconscionable demands of railroad corporations which deserve little at the hands of the American people; and at a time when their lack of merit was particularly notorious and dangerous.

We had just been obliged to take the railroads away from their private managers and to operate them ourselves because they failed under private operation to do their share of the work of winning the war. We carried them over the dangerous period and then we turned them back to their old managers with a reward for demerit of huge government bounties and a right to tax the American people to the very limit of what the traffic would bear. Like a reckless set of boys they gleefully seized their new privilege in both hands and worked it for all it was worth. They raised the rates 40 per cent. until they killed the business of the country and killed their own business.

The Governors of the Middle West are right in demanding that this law should be amended by striking out the provision which compels the Interstate Commerce Commission to allow the railroads to charge more than the traffic will bear. But there is more than this provision which ought to be amended in the Esch-Cummins law. The whole law ought to be stricken from the statute books. It was the final effort of those opposed to public ownership to permit private operation under public regulation, and it has utterly and swiftly failed, just as its opponents predicted it would fail. No law ever failed more grievously and more quickly.

The authors of this law went upon the theory that every attempted regulation which had gone before had failed and that the railroads had constantly said that the reason for their bankruptcy and the steady deterioration of their service was the constant limiting of them in their right to charge enough for their service. The authors of this bill, gratifying a predisposition towards the private managers of the railroads and the bankers behind them, decided to make the sky the limit of what the railroads might have under this new law, and it was thus that they gave to the railroads everything they asked for, and said, "Now go to it and run the railroads. The public will pay the bill in freight and passenger service."

The railroad managers expressed great joy at the passage of the law and made all kinds of extravagant promises, but within a month after taking possession from the government practically the whole American railroad system fell into a jam and the managers found themselves helpless to move a freight train. They had to resort immediately to government aid, and when the government agencies straightened them out again and set them going once more on their own hook, they raised the rates, destroying the business of the country and destroying their own business.

Now they are asking for more help. How much more help shall we give them before we recognise the glaring fact that private management of such a public function as transportation is impossible? Let us have public operation.

Rudest City in Britain

By THOMAS BURKE.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—During the last few months I have been travelling in a foreign country—in industrial England. I have seen Cradley Heath and Smethwick and Hanley and Longton and Widnes and Wigan and Leeds and Huddersfield and Oldham and Birmingham and Liverpool, and I declare that the ugliest of these is Liverpol.

It is not only ugly in its architecture and its plan; it is a city of ugly manners. It is the most unsocial and unsociable city that I know. The people call themselves Liverpudlians, and though I have tried to find a harsher name for them I cannot. They deserve every syllable of it. Their attitude toward the stranger within their gates is a Hymn of Hate—unless he comes with with "business" introductions.

During the five days I spent wandering about the city I received scarcely one civil word. Even the shopkeepers serve you with ugly address. Pay and get out. To pass the time of day with them is to earn a severe rebuff. Even in those friendly places where conventions are loosed, where one rests one foot on the brass rail, pleasant speech was not to be had. In the bar of the hotel where I stayed I passed, at times, a casual remark to a lonely customer. Immediately he looked at me sideways for some moments; said, "Ey?" or "Ah," and moved away.

Cause of Changes in Time

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Is there any change in time in crossing the equator? For instance, if you approach the equator from the north on any day at 1 o'clock, what day and what time of day would it be immediately after crossing? Thank you for any information.—Reader, Columbus, O.

THERE would be no change. The time of day is the same on the same meridian, from pole to pole, because the meridians run north and south, and the sun, whose apparent progress through the sky determines the hours, advances from east to west, crossing each meridian at the same instant, no matter where the observer may be placed along the line of the meridian.

If one observer were at the North Pole facing south along the meridian of Columbus, and another on the equator facing either north or south, and a third at the South Pole, facing north, they would all have the same actual hour of the twenty-four at the same moment. Yet, though it were noon to the observer on the equator, it would be unending night to the observer at that one of the poles whose hemisphere was inclined away from the sun, and unending day to the observer at the opposite end.

What Causes the Change

The change of time that you evidently have in mind is produced by differences of position in longitude, and longitude is reckoned along the parallels of latitude which run east and west parallel with the equator.

The rotations of the earth, once every twenty-four hours, in a direction from west to east, is the cause of the succession of day and night by bringing different sides of the earth in regular turn toward, or under, the sun. The time taken for one rotation of the earth has been artificially divided into the twenty-four hours, which have no natural basis except as they are so many equal parts of the period required by the earth to turn once completely over, or around. That period might just as well have been divided into ten, or into a hundred, equal parts, the division being simply a matter of human convenience.

Although it is the same actual hour of the twenty-four along the whole course of any meridian, from pole to pole, yet the local times of sunrise and sunset vary widely according to the position of the observer on the meridian, except at just two opposite times of the year, which are called the equinoxes, when the sun is exactly over the equator. At those times (about March 20 and September 23), the sun rises and sets everywhere (barring the effects of atmospheric refraction) at the same hour, and then day and night are everywhere in equal length.

Where Time Begins

To return to the question of the change of time with change of longitude. You must always remember that our division of each successive day into twenty-four hours, beginning with 1 and ending with 24, is purely artificial. Nature fixes no place where the reckoning begins, and where the hour 24 changes automatically back to 1. We might fix that place at the point where we happen to be, but when we visited our distant friends living far to the east or the west, we would find that their reckoning was far different from ours.

As the world has become united by the spread of population around it and the invention of means of rapid communication, it has been found necessary to fix upon a certain meridian where by common consent, and for common advantage, the reckoning of the hours of the day shall be supposed to begin. This meridian, the prime meridian of the earth, is situated 180 degrees from the meridian passing through the observatory of Greenwich, England, or, if we consider a meridian as a complete circle of the earth, then that half of the meridian of Greenwich which lies on the opposite side of the earth from Greenwich marks the line along which the day begins, or where the twenty-four hours of an expiring day changes to the first hour of the succeeding day.

Letter to the Editor

Coal Prices

Editor Boston American:

Last week the American Wholesale Coal Association through its president, W. R. Coyle of Bethlehem, Pa., sent a telegram to the Association of Railroad Executives recommending a sharp cut in rates on coal and coke. Here is part of the telegram as it appeared in the Sunday newspapers:

"Our customers, the consumers of coal, are asking why their coal remains so high. You and we know that coal has come down and that lower prices to them can come only with lower rates."

But lower freight rates do not seem to have the desired effect of lowering the price of coal in Boston and vicinity. In spite of the fact that freight rates have dropped from $4.40 per ton to $1.10 per ton, the coal dealers of Boston, instead of making a substantial drop, have recently boosted the price. Why this should have been done is an unsolvable problem. Even Mr. Hultman is silent on the matter.

With coal at $16 per ton and charcoal at $80 per ton it would seem that the average householder finds it a rather expensive operation to keep the pot boiling. How much more it will cost if the threatened strike takes place may not be successfully guessed.

R. J. COLEMAN.

PROBLEM OF FINDING A PLACE FOR MOTHERS

By Nellie Bly

WHAT should be done about mothers?

When children are grown and married and father is dead, what should be done with the mothers?

They are generally not old enough to be put in a chair and kept there, and yet too old to accept new ways and new ideas. They can't reconcile the first years of their married lives with the married lives of their children. They never possess the slightest doubt that their ways were vastly superior. And it is so much a matter of habit to be boss of the job that they can't yield to some one being head of the house.

It is the continual comparison of this time and that time that carbonizes the spark-plugs of domesticity and makes both units of the family give mother-in-law a bad name.

It isn't so much the cost of supporting an additional one, for three, with the exception of clothing, can subsist on what it costs to keep two. Nevertheless, even where the greatest bonds of love exist, it is unwise and dangerous for a married couple to share their home with mother or any one else.

Unhappiness on Both Sides

The unhappiness that comes from having mother in the house is not one-sided, by any means. It is hard for her to submit to new ways of living. It is painful to be no longer head of the house, to have control, and to feel, however considerate her treatment, that she is merely a hanger-on and is endured solely because of her relationship.

It is just as difficult for a mother to live with a son-in-law and daughter-in-law as it is for a woman or man to live with his mother. There is less contentment and happiness for the mother. For she realizes that she has come to the end of everything; that she is only tarrying on sufferance for a little while, until death takes her to where she will no longer be in the way.

Mothers cannot be transplanted with happiness to themselves. Regardless of being alone with all her children gone, the wise mother would remain in her little independent home. That and that only is the way to secure happiness for herself and her children. Even if mother must be supported independently at a great sacrifice, that sacrifice is better than to lose one's own happiness and make mother wretched for her brief span of life.

A young woman of my acquaintance, through her marriage, has secured all the luxuries of life, including a city home, a country home, a yacht and automobiles. Her mother lived in a little country house in a very small village hundreds of miles from here.

She hesitated in the first few years of her married life to propose to her husband to make her mother a member of her household, but finally, after the arrival of her third child, she proposed it, and her husband, without the least hesitancy, agreed.

So the mother came on, and for a few weeks it was indeed a happy household. It was a joy and delight for her to serve her mother breakfast in bed, dress her up in such garments as she had never dreamed of for dinner, and keep her sitting all day long with idle hands folded in the lap of her new and wonderful gowns.

Friction Appears Quickly

But after the novelty had worn off, mother began to shows signs of discontent and boredom. She resented being kept in bed for breakfast, just as she knew the maid could make her bed half so well as she could do it herself. She even lost her appetite and began talking about home dishes that never appeared on the table. She had quite a set-to with the trained nurse regarding the bringing up of the baby, she maintaining that no child would ever be what it ought to if it were not handled properly.

At the end of the year my friend came to see me.

"I have just been to a high building—a skyscraper—where it was so windy I was afraid to step off for fear of blowing away," she said. "I have visited the Aquarium and the Statue of Liberty for the first time in my life, because mother wanted to see them before she goes back home.

"Yes," she added, noting my look of inquiry, "she is going home. She is lonely and our way of living doesn't suit her. Do you know," she whispered in amazement, "she actually told me the other day that she was aching to do her own work? Can you understand it?"

It was easy to understand. Mother could not break her habit of years. Nor did she want to, and it was cruelty to impose it upon her. All she liked in the new life was automobile riding. She has gone back home with a generous allowance from her son-in-law, and with a fervor of her own, to enjoy as she will in the village where she lives.

SPIRITUAL ESPERANTO MAY BE SPOKEN

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

Though we do not understand their speech, a means of communication does extend some distance down among the lower orders and species of being.

Perhaps you will recall the experiment of Professor Garner in mid-Africa. He tried to learn the speech of our near-relative, the chimpansee, and to communicate with him. He succeeded sufficiently in discovering the meaning of the sounds that those monkeys made, to be able to reproduce the noises which meant hunger, hate, sex-desire, and kindred needs and wants, which we share with our "poor relations" in the animal world.

Also we have broken the wall of silence between us and the domesticated beasts—such as dogs, cats, horses and cows—at least enough to impose some of our speech upon them. Not that they actually understand our words, but only such of our sounds and intonations of voice which they have learned to associate with certain experiences affecting them.

Understands Little

When you call your pet canine a good doggy and he wags his tail, or you scold him and he slinks shame-faced away, don't rhapsodize about him and tell how human he is, and so intelligent that he can all but talk!

As a matter of fact, he understands very little that has meaning for our own species, and that little is intimately concerned with his canine needs and wishes. Our tones talk to him.

As for our human speech, have you ever wondered deeply enough about that? Talk of the marvel of telepathy, mere thought and its face to face communication are marvelous enough!

It is surely a dumbfounding miracle when you stop to contemplate it—that, out of the impressive depths of human silence, there should blossom so incalculably varied and so significantly beautiful a flower as Human Speech!

Think of the ages of travail, and growth, and migration, and mingling, which are involved in the development of all the languages and dialects of all the peoples of the earth!

How sweetly simple and how deliciously naive is the biblical account of all this! It tells how the whole earth was of one speech, after the Flood. And they misused their community of language by building a tower which was to reach the sky and to enable them to escape the catastrophy of another fall and rise of the waters.

So the Lord confounded their language, that they might not understand one another's speech, and he scattered them abroad upon the face of all the earth!

Languages Legion

Be that as it may, the languages of the children of men—like the devils in the New Testament story—today are legion. And, what is worse, not only are we mystified by the varied sets of sounds which we make, but even our hearts fail to understand the hearts of other peoples!

And so some of the dreamers, mainly lovers of the race, are dreaming again the accomplishment of a common language as a means of at least harmonizing, if not unifying, the jarring, jarring elements of the human species.

In desperate optimism, they have invented Esperanto (Desperanto, we had nearly called it), a clever concoction of languagehash, which they hope will at least be everywhere accepted and used as a secondary speech and a universal means of communication.

For practical purposes as well as idealistic, one wishes devoutly that human beings could at least become mutually intelligible, wherever they may find themselves.

It is too much to hope that such mere vocal understanding will cause men to love one another.

It seems tragic that, after all these ages of agony, the species that is struggling so heroically to become and to remain human, should still be striving for the mere means of mutual understanding through the spoken word!

Fortunately, however, it is within the power to each of us to acquire the sort of Spiritual Esperanto which will enable us to think and feel and sympathise in universal terms.

Because you do not make the same kinds of sounds as another is no reason for hating, fearing, or suspecting him.

If you achieve the silent Spiritual Esperanto, then, even above wars and armaments and discordant languages, you have acquired the universal speech of human brotherhood.
